Farming Inside Invisible Worlds Hugh Campbell, 2020-09-03 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on www.bloomsburycollections.com It is funded by the University of Otago New Zealand Farming Inside Invisible Worlds argues that the farm is a key player in the creation and stabilisation of political economic and ecological power particularly in colonised landscapes like New Zealand America and Australia This open access book reviews and rejects the way that farms are characterised in orthodox economics and agricultural science and then shows how re-centring the farm using the theoretical idea of political ontology can transform the way we understand the power of farming Starting with the colonial history of farms in New Zealand Hugh Campbell goes on to describe the rise of modernist farming and its often hidden political racial and ecological effects He concludes with an examination of alternative ways to farm in New Zealand showing how the prior histories of colonisation and modernisation reveal important ways to farm differently in post colonial worlds Hugh Campbell's book has wide ranging implications for understanding the role farms play in both our food systems and landscapes and is an exciting new addition to food studies

Dryland Farming in Africa Jim R. J. Rowland, 1993 Crop production in the drought prone tropics has been relatively neglected by research and development workers largely due to its poor potential for commercial exploitation Despite this a considerable amount of information is available on this subject but there have been few attempts to draw it together and to relate it to the needs of subsistence and small farmers and to the particular set of constraints under which they labour
