Along New England Roads W. C. Prime, 2017-02-25 PROBABLY no one ever made a book for the reason which induces the making of this The papers here gathered were written to a daily newspaper the New York Journal of Commerce in the course of a correspondence which has extended over more than forty years Although often asked to gather them in a book my judgment has been that such letters are not good material for continuous reading in a solid book They were written for the purpose of a day served their purpose and I had no wish to recall them But they had been cut out and preserved by more than one person strangers to me who have severally written me that if I do not make a book of them they will Should such a book be made by another person it would perpetuate many sad errors of type and be a misfortune to the papers and to me There was but one way to protect the dead and long buried sketches namely to select some of them revise correct and edit them and make a book which I have done only because I did not want it made Death in Early New England Robert A.
