The current model of parental discipline is as outdated as a rotary phone. Why don't our kids do what we want them to do? Parents often take the blame for misbehavior but this obscures a broader trend in our modern highly connected age: children have less self control than ever. About half of the current generation of children will develop a mood or behavioral disorder or a substance addiction by age eighteen. Contemporary kids need to learn independence and responsibility yet our old ideas of punishments and rewards are preventing this from happening. To stem this growing crisis of self regulation, journalist and parenting expert Katherine Reynolds Lewis articulates what she calls The Apprenticeship Model, a new theory of discipline that centers on learning the art of self control. Blending new scientific research and powerful individual stories of change, Lewis shows that if we trust our children to face consequences they will learn to adapt and moderate their own behavior. She watches as chaotic homes become peaceful, bewildered teachers see progress and her own family grows and evolves in light of these new ideas. You'll recognize your own family in Lewis's sensitive realistic stories and you'll find a path to making everyone in your home more capable, kinder and happier including yourself.

Disasters in Field Research Gillian H. Ice, Darna L. Dufour, Nancy J. Stevens, 2015-01-22

From ravenous ants and temperamental gear to debilitating illness and unpredictable politics, field research can be fraught with challenges and opportunities for mishap. Disasters in Field Research is your guide to what can go wrong while conducting fieldwork and what you can do to avoid or minimize the impact of unexpected events. Ice, Dufour and Stevens address the issues confronting both students and professional researchers as they embark on field research. For example, permits may be difficult to obtain or even revoked at the last minute. Cultural differences and misunderstandings can disrupt data collection. Equipment can be held up by customs or fail to work as expected. The authors offer practical advice on preparing for such possibilities while active researchers from a wide array of disciplines relate in brief first person narratives their own encounters with disaster, how they solved or failed to solve the problem and their recommendations for avoiding similar issues in the future. Each thematic chapter concludes with strategies and suggestions for making the most of your preparations, recovering from missteps and coping with calamity. The result is an excellent companion book for field methods.
