Organizing European Space Christer Jonsson, Sven Tagil, Gunnar Tornqvist, 2000-05-31 This book combines perspectives from political science, history and geography to provide a comprehensive introduction to Europe or European space as we understand it today. Central to the book is the phenomenon of the sovereign state and the question of alternative ways of organizing Europe politically and economically. The book explores four different ways of organizing space: state, union, region and network. By tracing the origins of the sovereign state in Europe, the book first reviews the resilience and adaptability of the sovereign state historically and then looks at the implications of the contradictory processes of integration and fragmentation or globalization and regionalization present today. A key concept developed throughout the book is that of networks, especially with respect to the European Union and the relationship between regions, networks and cities, a relationship long traditional to Europe's political organization. The authors review critically popular notions of a Europe of regions or the end of the sovereign state and instead serve to combine their different disciplinary conceptual tools and perspectives to provide new insights into the future organization of European space. Organizing European Space will be essential reading for all students of contemporary Europe seeking a deeper understanding of the modern state and the complexity of changing notions of identity, political organization and territoriality inherent in Europe in the past, present and future.

tested in a careful selection of comparative country and policy studies At the core is the question whether the European Union is destined to a network type of governance and whether and how this type of governance will be translated into the member states The individual chapters subject the governing patterns at European and national level to empirical scrutiny Drawing on recent research findings in different issue areas including monetary union social affairs environment genetic engineering and market liberalisation in transport banking energy professional services the contributions highlight the impact of the European activities on policy making process in the member states

Differential Europe Adrienne Windhoff-Héritier, 2001 This cohesive study develops a sophisticated theoretical and conceptual framework for studying the impact of European policies on member states Focusing especially on transport policy the authors employ an empirically rich set of case studies to demonstrate convincingly that this influence depends on pre existing policies and institutional capacity to change Depending on the particular phase of regulation in which a country finds itself and on its institutional flexibility an identical EU policy has remarkably diverse impacts within individual member states Visit our website for sample chapters
