The principal foods of Mexican cuisine and their origins are explained in the second chapter. Mexican women have always been responsible for everyday cooking including the intensive preparation of grinding corn, peppers and spices by hand and a chapter is devoted to this work and a discussion of how traditional ways are supplemented today with modern conveniences and kitchen aids such as blenders and food processors. Surveys of class and regional differences in typical meals and cuisines present insight into the daily lives of a wide variety of Mexicans. A final chapter on diet and health discusses current health concerns particularly malnutrition, anemia, diabetes and obesity.
