Contentious Curricula Amy Binder, 2009-01-10 This book compares two challenges made to American public school curricula in the 1980s and 1990s It identifies striking similarities between proponents of Afrocentrism and creationism accounts for their differential outcomes and draws important conclusions for the study of culture organizations and social movements Amy Binder gives a brief history of both movements and then describes how their challenges played out in seven school districts Despite their very different constituencies inner city African American cultural essentialists and predominately white suburban Christian conservatives Afrocentrists and creationists had much in common Both made similar arguments about oppression and their children s well being both faced skepticism from educators about their factual claims and both mounted their challenges through bureaucratic channels In each case challenged school systems were ultimately able to minimize or reject challengers demands but the process varied by case and type of challenge Binder finds that Afrocentrists were more successful in advancing their cause than were creationists because they appeared to offer a solution to the real problem of urban school failure met with more administrative sympathy toward their complaints of historic exclusion sought to alter lower prestige curricula history not science and faced opponents who lacked a legal remedy comparable to the rule of church state separation invoked by creationism s opponents Binder s analysis yields several lessons for social movements research suggesting that researchers need to pay greater attention to how movements seek to influence bureaucratic decision making often from within It also demonstrates the benefits of examining discursive structural and institutional factors in concert

Rebecca Livingstone, Kelly McFall, Abigail Perkiss, 2022-12-20 Monuments and Memory Making immerses students in the conversations and controversies that emerged as the nation grappled with how best to memorialize what was at the time the longest military conflict in US history As students engage in the historical process of memory making they will work to reconcile the varied and often contradictory voices that rose up after the fall of Saigon Students will tackle questions such as How do we create a national memory of the past How do we reckon with a war that was widely understood as a defeat for the United States How do we remember the dead while honoring the living How do we reunite a fractured nation How do public opinion and public consciousness shape our understanding of the past and whose voices are privileged over others Working with primary and secondary sources students will take command of the subject matter as they immerse themselves in their individual roles as historical actors in the debate of how best to remember and honor American participation and sacrifice in the Vietnam War Book Review Digest
