Burack,2018-09-21 Executive function is an umbrella term for various cognitive processes that are central to goal directed behavior thoughts and emotions These processes are especially important in novel or demanding situations which require a rapid and flexible adjustment of behavior to the changing demands of the environment The development of executive function relies on the maturation of associated brain regions as well as on stimulation in the child s social contexts especially the home and school Over the past decade the term executive function has become a buzzword in the field of education as both researchers and educators underscore the importance of skills like goal setting planning and organizing in academic success Accordingly in initiating this Research Topic and eBook our goal was to provide a forum for state of the art theoretical and empirical work on this that both facilitates communication among researchers from diverse fields and provides a theoretically sound source of information for educators The contributors to this volume who hail from several different countries in Europe and North America have certainly accomplished this goal in their nuanced and cutting edge depictions of the complex links among various executive function components and educational success

Balancing the Common Core Curriculum in Middle School Education James H. Bunn,2017-01-09 This book examines the idea of good education which is thought to include a scientific and technical component a mathematical component a writing component and an ethical and aesthetic component Bunn proposes a new three way intersection in these teachings the basic sciences and mechanics of leveraging on a seesaw the basic formulations of patterning an algebraic equation and the basic rules for writing a sentence in English In all three forms of inquiry balance is the mainstay through which problems in US middle school education are brought together and analyzed
