Simultaneous Identities Uma Pradhan, 2020-12-03 The recent socio political changes in Nepal have brought assimilationist notions of Nepali nationalism under a tight scrutiny and drawn attention to more plural inclusive and diverse notions of Nepalianness. However, both assimilationist and pluralist visions continue to remain normative in their approach and often posit ethnic and national identity in opposition to each other. Drawing on the everyday practices in the two schools, this book illustrates that social actors in minority language education did not necessarily select between minority identity and national identity but instead made simultaneous claims to more than one social identity by discursively positioning ethnic identity as national identity. It builds on the notion of simultaneity to illustrate that it is through the unresolved co-presences of apparently contradictory ways that people maintain their multi-layered identities. By arguing for an analytical necessity to adopt a relational approach, it aims to complicate the neat compartmentalisation of identities.

Language, Culture, Identity and Citizenship in College Classrooms and Communities Juan C. Guerra, 2015-10-05. Language, Culture, Identity and Citizenship in College Classrooms and Communities examines what takes place in writing classrooms beyond academic analytical and argumentative writing to include forms that engage students in navigating the civic, political, social and cultural spheres they inhabit. It presents a conceptual framework for imagining how writing instructors can institute campus-wide initiatives such as Writing Across Communities that attempt to connect the classroom and the campus to the students' various communities of belonging, especially students who have been historically underserved. This framework reflects an emerging perspective: writing across difference that challenges the argument that the best writing instructors can do is develop the skills and knowledge students need to make a successful transition from their home discourses to academic discourses. Instead, the value inherent in the full repertoire of linguistic, cultural and semiotic resources students use in their varied communities of belonging needs to be acknowledged and students need to be encouraged to call on these to the fullest extent possible in the course of learning what they are being taught in the writing classroom. Pedagogically, this book provides educators with the rhetorical, discursive and literacy tools needed to implement this approach.

Doing Research within Communities Kerry Taylor-Leach, Donna Starks, 2016-04-14. Doing Research within Communities provides real-life examples of field research projects in language and education, offering an overview of research processes and solutions to the common challenges faced by researchers in the field. This unique book contains personal research narratives from sixteen different and varied fieldwork projects, providing advice and guidance to the reader through example rather than instruction and enabling the reader to discover connections with the storyteller and gain insights into their own research journey. This book provides advice, practical guidance and support for engaging with a community as a research site, covers the real-life theoretical, ethical and practical issues faced by researchers such as language choice in multilingual communities and the insider-outsider status of the researcher, discusses challenges posed by a variety of mono and multilingual settings from remote island communities to large urban areas, includes research from across the Asia-Pacific area including Australia, New Zealand and East Timor, and also the US. Doing Research within Communities is essential reading for early-career researchers and graduate students undertaking fieldwork within communities.
