Research in Chinese as a Second

Language Istvan Kecskes, 2013-05-28 The book aims to address one of the main problems of Chinese language teaching lack of research base The rapidly growing interest in Chinese language teaching has not resulted in the development of a strong research background This book attempts to change the current situation The volume consists of three chapters Chapter I Research Base for Practice contains three papers each of which uses research findings as a basis for solving issues connected with practical language teaching Chapter II Integrating Culture and Language is about one of the most intriguing topics of current language oriented research how to integrate culture into the process of language teaching Chapter III Acquisition of Language Structures consists of studies that investigate the acquisition of certain grammatical structures in Chinese There are only a few papers in the literature on this issue so the articles in this chapter are especially important for further research One of the most important features of the volume is that each paper makes an attempt to bring together theory and practice by focusing on theory building based on practice or theory application in practice Thus the book can be recommended to both researchers and practitioners

Language Development and Language Impairment Paul Fletcher, Ciara O'Toole, 2015-08-17 Language Development and Language Impairment offers a problem based introduction to the assessment and treatment of a wide variety of childhood language developmental disorders Focuses for the most part on the pre school years the period during which the foundations for language development are laid Uses a problem based approach designed to motivate students to find the information they need to identify and explore learning issues that a particular speech or language issue raises Examines the development of a child's phonological system the growth of vocabulary the development of grammar and issues related to conversational and narrative competence Integrates information on typical and atypical language development

Metacognitive Approaches to Developing Oracy Roy Evans, Deborah Jones, 2013-09-13 The acquisition of speech and language represent significant achievements for all children These aspects of child development have received substantial attention in the research literature and a considerable body of theoretical knowledge exists to chart progress from infancy to maturity Cross cultural studies have identified the common purposes served by the acquisition of oral language by children and the essential similarity in the sequence through which speech develops irrespective of geography and culture What is less clear is precisely how children learn to say what they mean and how teachers and parents can support and enhance the development of meaningful speech in their children Until now children's speech has been underused as a means of promoting learning in the formal school setting New requirements within the National Curriculum are trying to address this gap but there remains a lack of clarity as to what this means for practice and how it relates to the broad base of curricular objectives This book brings together a body of work from different countries it offers an improved understanding of how strategies for developing speaking and listening may impact metacognitive awareness and raise standards of literacy and dialogic thinking for all children This book was previously published as a special issue of Early Child Development and Care

Input and Interaction in Language Acquisition

Clare Gallaway, Brian J. Richards, 1994-04-14 Language addressed to children or Baby Talk became the subject of research interest thirty years ago Since then the linguistic environment of infants and toddlers has been widely studied Input and Interaction in Language Acquisition is an up to date statement of the facts and controversies surrounding Baby Talk its nature and likely effects With contributions from leading linguists and psychologists it explores language acquisition in different cultures and family contexts in typical and atypical learners and in second and foreign language learners It is designed as a sequel to the now famous Talking to Children edited by Catherine Snow and Charles Ferguson and Professor Snow here provides an introduction comparing issues of importance in the field today with the previous concerns of researchers

Corpora in Language Acquisition Research Heike Behrens, 2008 Corpus research forms the backbone of research on children's language development Leading researchers in the field present a survey on the history of data collection different types of data and the treatment of methodological problems Morphologically and syntactically parsed corpora allow for the concise explorations of formal phenomena the quick retrieval of errors and reliability checks New probabilistic and connectionist computations investigate how children integrate the multiple sources of information available in the input and new statistical methods compute rates of acquisition as well as error rates dependent on sample size Sample analyses show how multi modal corpora are used to investigate the interaction of discourse and linguistic structure how cross linguistic generalizations for acquisition can be formulated and tested and how individual variation can be explored Finally ways in which corpus research interacts with computational linguistics and experimental research are presented

Lexical Diversity and Language Development D. Malvern, B. Richards, N. Chipere, P. Durán, 2004-05-28 Vocabulary richness including lexical diversity and use of rare words has an important role in assessing proficiency diagnosing progress and testing theory in the study of language development This book reviews different methods for quantifying how vocabulary is deployed in spontaneous speech and writing before introducing an alternative approach which can assess overall lexical diversity measure morphology development and compare the development of different word classes The new approach is illustrated by its application to first and second language learners Parameter Setting in Language Acquisition Dalila

Ayoun, 2005-02-28 This book provides a broad overview of parameter setting theory in first and second language acquisition and refines the theory by revisiting and challenging the traditional assumptions that underlie it based on cross linguistic language data that cover a range of syntactic and phonological phenomena From an historical perspective on parameter setting theory to an introduction to its role in computational linguistics neurolinguistics and language change the reader will find a critique of the most commonly made arguments as well as an index of all the syntactic phonological lexical and morphological parameters presented in the literature to date A closer look at the theory itself addresses the following questions What does a parameter setting approach to language acquisition entail What are the underpinnings of the theory What issues and problems remain to be solved The empirical studies carried out to test the null subject parameter and verb movement parameter are reviewed to re examine long standing theoretical assumptions as well as the learnability implications for first and second language acquisition

Constructing a Language Michael TOMASELLO, 2009-06-30 In this groundbreaking book Tomasello presents a comprehensive usage based theory of language acquisition Drawing together a vast body of empirical research in cognitive science linguistics and developmental psychology Tomasello demonstrates that we don't need a self contained language instinct to explain how children learn language Their linguistic ability is interwoven with other cognitive abilities

The Acquisition and Use of Yes-no Questions in English Ursula Kania, 2016-08-15 This monograph offers a comprehensive account of the L1 acquisition and use of yes no questions in English from a usage based construction grammar perspective On the basis of the BNC and a high density longitudinal CHILDES corpus the book explores two issues which have largely been neglected in previous research 1 the prevalence of non canonical questions such as elliptical and declarative questions in adult to adult as well as child directed speech and the L1 acquisition of these structures 2 The discourse functional properties of both canonical and non canonical yes no questions especially with regard to their influence on the acquisition process
