11. Chronic renal insufficiency is a common cause of metabolic acidosis. The kidneys are responsible for the excretion of hydrogen ions and the reabsorption of bicarbonate. In chronic renal insufficiency, the kidneys are unable to excrete hydrogen ions and reabsorb bicarbonate, leading to a decrease in bicarbonate and an increase in hydrogen ions, resulting in metabolic acidosis.
12. Diabetic ketoacidosis is a complication of diabetes mellitus. It occurs when there is a severe deficiency of insulin, leading to the breakdown of fat and the production of ketones. Ketones are acidic and can lead to metabolic acidosis.
13. Lactic acidosis is a condition in which there is a buildup of lactic acid in the blood. This can occur in a variety of situations, including shock, heart failure, and liver failure. Lactic acidosis can lead to metabolic acidosis.
14. Drugs can also cause metabolic acidosis. For example, salicylates (aspirin) and certain chemotherapy drugs can lead to metabolic acidosis.
15. Respiratory acidosis is a condition in which there is a buildup of carbon dioxide in the blood. This can occur in a variety of situations, including chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and asthma. Respiratory acidosis can lead to metabolic acidosis.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Ankara, Turkey. The study group consisted of 20 children (10 boys and 10 girls) who were randomly selected from the 10-year-old children in the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not participate in any physical activity during the 12-week period, while the experimental group participated in a 12-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness than the control group at the end of the 12-week period. The results also showed that the experimental group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness than the control group at the beginning of the 12-week period. The results of the study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.
