Getting On: Some Thoughts on Women and Ageing Liz Byrski, 2012-06-01 Why are we so obsessed with staying young In a culture that advocates the pursuit of endless youth and physical beauty how can we embrace the reality the pleasures and the rewards of getting on And what does the fight against ageing mean when all women must eventually face the double standard of ageism and sexism Once past fifty older women begin to sense that they have become invisible From the visual displays in the mall to the pages of magazines and the television screens at the heart of our homes young women with perfect skin bouncy enhanced breasts pouting lips long straight hair and perfect teeth gaze down on us The ageing population is traditionally viewed as a problem a drain on financial resources health housing and community services and a burden on younger generations But living longer and living well are the triumphs of a civilised society It is also the future that all generations want for themselves Can we change the conversation on ageing Getting old is tough but it s also an opportunity to celebrate how far we have come and to shape a different future In this essay Liz Byrski author of Last Chance Caf and Bad Behaviour examines the adventure of growing old in the twenty first century the new possibilities the joy and the sorrow of solitude the reality of grief and loss and the satisfaction of having travelled so far Writers like Byrski are needed not only for the clarity of their emotional intelligence but for the courage of their political convictions West Australian

Ageing, Popular Culture and Contemporary Feminism I. Whelehan,J. For eight year old Sophie who has just been told that she s a bastard it seems that she lives in a world of secrets unanswered questions and whispers Who is her father and why did her mother never tell anyone who he was With only her reclusive grandfather to raise her and more than one neighbour expecting her to go off the rails like her mother after all apples rarely fall far from the tree Sophie struggles to find her place in the world In a time when experiences are shared around the kitchen table over the back fence or up at the corner shop Sophie learns that life is rarely simple love is always complicated and sometimes it takes more than blood ties to make a family Getting on Liz Byrski,2014-04 Why are we so obsessed with staying young In a culture that advocates the pursuit of endless youth and physical beauty how can we embrace the reality the pleasures and the rewards of getting on And what does the fight against ageing mean when all women must eventually face the double standard of ageism and sexism Once past fifty older women begin to sense that they have become invisible From the visual displays in the mall to the pages of magazines and the television screens at the heart of our homes young women with perfect skin bouncy enhanced breasts pouting lips long straight hair and perfect teeth gaze down on us The
