Burack,2018-09-21 Executive function is an umbrella term for various cognitive processes that are central to goal directed behavior thoughts and emotions These processes are especially important in novel or demanding situations which require a rapid and flexible adjustment of behavior to the changing demands of the environment The development of executive function relies on the maturation of associated brain regions as well as on stimulation in the child s social contexts especially the home and school Over the past decade the term executive function has become a buzzword in the field of education as both researchers and educators underscore the importance of skills like goal setting planning and organizing in academic success Accordingly in initiating this Research Topic and eBook our goal was to provide a forum for state of the art theoretical and empirical work on this that both facilitates communication among researchers from diverse fields and provides a theoretically sound source of information for educators The contributors to this volume who hail from several different countries in Europe and North America have certainly accomplished this goal in their nuanced and cutting edge depictions of the complex links among various executive function components and educational success Preparing for Life in a Digital Age Julian Fraillon,John Ainley,Wolfram Schulz,Tim Friedman,Eveline Gebhardt,2014-12-13 Ability to use information and communication technologies ICT is an imperative for effective participation in today s digital age Schools worldwide are responding to the need to provide young people with that ability But how effective are they in this regard The IEA International Computer and Information Literacy Study ICILS responded to this question by studying the extent to which young people have developed computer and information literacy CIL which is defined as the ability to use computers to investigate create and communicate with others at home school the workplace and in society The study was conducted under the auspices of the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement IEA and builds on a series of earlier IEA studies focusing on ICT in education Data were gathered from almost 60 000 Grade 8 students in more than 3 300 schools from 21 education systems This information was augmented by data from almost 35 000 teachers in those schools and by contextual data collected from school ICT coordinators school principals and the ICILS national research centers The IEA ICILS team systematically investigated differences among the participating countries in students CIL outcomes how participating countries were providing CIL related education and how confident teachers were in using ICT in their pedagogical practice The team also explored differences within and across countries with respect to relationships between CIL education outcomes and student characteristics and school contexts In general the study findings presented in this international report challenge the notion of young people as digital natives with a self developed capacity to use digital technology The large variations in CIL proficiency within and across the ICILS countries suggest it is naive to expect young people to develop CIL in the absence of coherent learning programs Findings also indicate that system and school level planning needs to focus on increasing teacher expertise in using ICT for pedagogical purposes if such programs are to have the desired effect The report furthermore presents an empirically derived scale and description of CIL learning that educational stakeholders can reference when deliberating about CIL education and use to monitor change in CIL over time

Chinese Military Modernization and Force Development Anthony H. Cordesman, Ashley Hess, Nicholas S.

Yarosh, 2013-10-22 China's military development has become a key focus of US security policy as well as that of virtually all Asia Pacific states This report from the CSIS Burke Chair in Strategy examines trends in Chinese strategy military spending and military forces based on Chinese defense white papers and other official Chinese sources US reporting by the Department of Defense and other defense agencies and other government sources including Japanese and Korean defense white papers and the International Monetary Fund The analysis also draws on the work of experts outside of government various research centers and nongovernmental organizations

Sustainable Horticulture Development and Nutrition Security (Vol. 3) Prem Nath, 2018-01-01 We all are indebted to nature for providing us food and its resources for our subsistence and survival In the food domain cereal and legume grains occupy the front line whereas horticultural crops have occupied the second line of defense For healthy diet cereals and legumes provide us with carbohydrates and protein whereas fruits and vegetables provide us minerals and vitamins Both macro and micro nutrients are essential for human growth and development The fruits and vegetables are the major source of micro nutrients It is estimated that up to 2.7 million lives could potentially be saved each year if fruit and vegetable production was sufficiently increased Both at national and international levels food and agriculture horticulture development plans and estimates are basically developed framed and implemented and narrowed down to cereal production In the present context of attaining nutrition security this mode of thinking on food needs to be changed to nutrients which will include necessarily all those crops including fruit and vegetables which provide all macro and micro nutrients to ensure balanced nutrition needed for good human health The present publication has attempted to reflect and discuss the above views and ideas on the subject of sustainable horticulture development and nutrition security in nine chapters with 32 articles by 32 authors
