Handbook of Adult Development and Learning Carol Hoare, 2006-03-30 Adult development and learning have always existed as two separate fields of study with development falling under psychology and learning under education Recent advances in theory research and practice however have made it clear that an important reciprocal relationship exists between them advances in development frequently lead to learning and conversely learning quite often fuels development The synchronicity between development and learning is responsible for positive changes in many capacities including insight intelligence reflective and meta cognition personality expression interpersonal competence and self efficacy This synchronicity is also leading to the growth of a new discipline at the borders of adult development and learning The Handbook of Adult Development and Learning is the first to bring together the leading scholars from both adult development and learning to explore what will form the foundation for this new discipline the latest research at the intersection of these fields It examines six major aspects of their intersection foundations key areas of integration the self system higher reaches of development and learning essential contexts and specific applications An introductory chapter explains why it is so important to recognize and fuel the growth of this new discipline Subsequent chapters review the latest theoretical and empirical literature and provide a rich itinerary for future research This handbook is a must read for all who promote optimal aging It will be an invaluable reference for scholars in development and education as well as rich resource for policy makers and practitioners such as corporate executives and human resource personnel Encyclopedia of Information Science and Technology, First Edition

Khosrow-Pour, D.B.A., Mehdi, 2005-01-31 Comprehensive coverage of critical issues related to information science and technology Dance/Movement Therapy for Infants and Young Children with Medical Illness Suzi Tortora, Miri Keren, 2022-12-30 This book presents dance movement therapy as a window into the emotional and internal experience of a baby with a medical illness within the context of treating the whole family system and using the DC 0 5 as the basis for formulating the clinical situation This book fills a gap in the literature bringing a variety of fields together including infant mental health infant and child psychiatry nonverbal movement analysis and the creative arts therapies Grounded in a biopsychosocial perspective dance movement therapy is introduced as the main treatment modality using nonverbal expression as a means of communication and dance and music activities as intervention tools to support the child and family Vignettes from both during and years after the medical experience are presented throughout the book taking into consideration the subtle and more obvious effects of illness on the child's later emotional social and behavioral development They illustrate the expertise of the authors as infant mental health professionals drawing upon their work in hospitals and private practices and highlight their unique perspectives and years of collaboration This exciting new book is essential reading for clinicians and mental health professionals working with infants and their families Handbook of Cross-cultural Psychology: Theory and method John W. Berry, Ype H. Poortinga, Janak Pandey, 1997 Part of a set containing the contributions of authors from a variety of nations cultures traditions and perspectives this volume offers an up to date assessment of theoretical developments and methodological issues in the rapidly evolving area of cross cultural psychology Individual Differences: From Neurobiological Bases to New Insight on Approach and Avoidance Behavior Daniela Laricchiuta, 2016-01-22 The superordinate division of emotions is distributed along a bipolar dimension of affective valence from approaching rewarding situations to avoiding punitive situations Avoiding and approaching behaviors determine the disposition to the primary emotions of fear and attachment and the behavioral responses to the environmental stimuli of danger novelty and reward Approach or avoidance behaviors are associated with the brain pathways controlling cognitive and attentional function reward sensitivity and emotional expression involving prefrontal cortex amygdala striatum and cerebellum Individual differences in approach and avoidance behavior might be modulated by normal variance in the level of functioning of different neurotransmitter systems such as dopaminergic serotonergic noradrenergic and endocannabinoid systems as well as many peptides such as corticotropin releasing hormone. These substances act at various central target areas to increase intensity of appetitive or defensive motivation. Physiologically, personality temperaments of approach and avoidance are viewed as instigators of propensity. They produce immediate affective, cognitive and behavioral inclinations in response to stimuli and orient individuals across domains and situations in a consistent fashion. Although the action undoubtedly emerges directly from these temperamental proclivities, ultimate behavioral outcomes are often a function of the integration among goal pursuit, self regulation and temperament trait. Defective coping strategies to aversive or rewarding stimuli characterize the patho physiology of anxiety and stress related disorders or compulsive and addiction behaviors respectively. Individuals with neuropsychiatric symptoms such as depression, suicidal behavior, bipolar mania, schizophrenia, substance use disorders, pathological gambling and anxiety disorders have scores which fall at the extreme tails of the normal distribution for a specific temperamental trait. The present Research Topic on the individual differences in emotional and motivational processing emphasizes the link between neuronal pattern and behavioral expression. The Topic includes experimental and clinical researches addressing the individual differences related to approach and avoidance and their behavioral characterization, structural and neurochemical profiles, synaptic connections and receptor expressions. Studies are organized in a framework that puts in evidence the phenotypic expression and neurobiological patterns characterizing the individual differences and their biological variance.

Life-Span Developmental Psychology Nancy Datan, Leon H. Ginsberg, 2013-10-22

Life Span Developmental Psychology Normative Life Crises is a compilation of papers that deals with various points of view between the academic perspective, studies in developmental psychology and applied perspective and the practical efforts of social workers to help individual clients. Part I discusses normative life crises from the two perspectives that include human behavior theory in social work education. This part also includes an interdisciplinary approach covering developmental, social, sociological, economic and psychological fields. Part II covers the normative life crises in individual development such as discussions on death, ego development and a practitioner's response on models of ego development. The book also discusses an abstract model versus an actual individual experience in dealing with crises as well as the meanings of adaptation and survival during old age. Part III presents the normative life crises in the family circle covering topics such as parenthood, sex roles, depression, widowhood and an example of situational stress. Part IV deals with the normative life crises and the social system including socialization, life course, changing work cycles and public policy on death. This book will prove valuable for psychologists, psychiatrists, sociologists, social workers and behavioral scientists.
