TIMELINE OF THE CRUSADES

The Crusades were a series of religious wars initiated and supported by the Roman Catholic objective of recovering the Holy Land from Islamic rule. Those included:

The First Crusade (1095-1099): The First Crusade was the most successful. Armies from the Turks and took control of Jerusalem.

The Second Crusade (1145-1149): In 1146, the city of Edessa was conquered by the "Crusader state" created after the First Crusade. Most of Edessa's population was killed in the city or in the aftermath. The second Crusade was launched to take back the city, but it was not successful.

The Third Crusade (1187-1192): In 1187 Saladin, the Sultan of Egypt, recaptured the city of Jerusalem. The third Crusade was launched by Emperor Barbarossa of Germany, King Richard the Lionheart of England, and King Philip II of France. Richard the Lionheart fought Saladin, but did not win the right for pilgrims to visit the holy city.

The Fourth Crusade (1202-1204): Pope Innocent III formed another crusade with the Holy Land. However, the Crusaders got sidetracked and greedy and ended up conquering Constantinople instead.

Children's Crusade (1212): Started by a French child named Stephen of Clonay and a German child named Nicholas, thousands of children gathered to march to the Holy Land. This ended in total disaster as the children were never seen again. They were likely sold into slavery.

THE CRUSADES

The city of Jerusalem was the center of faith for three major world religions. For people of the Jewish faith, it was their homeland. It was part of the Promised Land that Jehovah gave to Abraham and his descendants. To Muslims, Jerusalem was the location where the Prophet Muhammad ascended into heaven. After Mecca and Medina, Jerusalem was Islam's third holiest city. Christians saw Jerusalem as the location of Jesus Christ's birth and death. It is also the location of much of the New Testament. Jerusalem lies within the historic region of Palestine.

Jerusalem and much of Palestine was conquered by the Arabian Caliphate by 630 CE and would remain in Arab control for centuries. In 1095, Pope Urban II called for volunteer knights to travel to Jerusalem and win it back from Muslim control. He called their mission a crusade. The word "crusade" comes from the word "Crux," which means "cross" in Latin and meant a "holy war." Those who volunteered for the Crusade would be called crusaders, meaning that they took the cross of Jesus upon them.

While Pope Urban surely wanted Christians to be able to visit the Holy Land of Jerusalem, some historians think he had another goal in mind. Urban's strategy may have been to unite the Eastern and Western branches of Christianity and to establish himself as head of the unified Church. The Great Schism of 1054 divided Christianity into the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox faiths. Pope Urban hoped the Crusades would lead to the reunification of the two faiths and the reestablishment of the Byzantine Empire and Constantinople.
