Headhunters William Finlay,James E. Coverdill,2018-10-18 Headhunters are third party agents paid a fee by companies for locating job candidates perform a unique sales role The product they sell is people matching candidates with jobs and companies with candidates Headhunters affect the professional lives of thousands of employees every day and their work has a profound though hidden effect on the employment picture in the United States William Finlay and James E Coverdill draw on interviews with and observations of headhunters and on analysis of headhunting training seminars lectures industry newsletters and a mail survey of headhunting firms The result is a frank and sometimes unsettling portrait of the aims attitudes and tactics of practitioners The payment of fees has shifted from candidates to employers and recruiters now find people to fit jobs rather than the other way around Finlay and Coverdill address what they feel is a serious lack of research about the work headhunters do and how they do it Their book is built around three major questions What advantages do employers derive from using third party agents to handle candidate search and recruitment How are headhunters able to accomplish the double sale selling candidates to employers and employers to candidates What criteria do headhunters use for selecting candidates In the process Finlay and Coverdill link their findings to larger issues of institutional and historical context revealing the economic and political reasons clients use headhunters demonstrating how headhunters manipulate clients and candidates and assessing the impact of headhunters actions on hiring decisions

High Tech and High Touch James E. Coverdill,William Finlay,2017-11-15 In High Tech and High Touch James E Coverdill and William Finlay invite readers into the dynamic world of headhunters personnel professionals who acquire talent for businesses and other organizations on a contingent fee basis In a high tech world where social media platforms have simplified direct contact between employers and job seekers Coverdill and Finlay acknowledge it is relatively easy to find large numbers of apparently qualified candidates. However, the authors demonstrate that headhunters serve a valuable purpose in bringing high touch search into the labor market; they help parties on both sides of the transaction to define their needs and articulate what they have to offer. As well as providing valuable information for sociologists and economists, High Tech and High Touch demonstrates how headhunters approach practical issues such as identifying and attracting candidates, how they solicit, secure, and evaluate search assignments from client companies, and how they strive to broker interactions between candidates and clients to maximize the likelihood that the right people land in the right jobs.

One of the world's top headhunters reveals his most valuable techniques for getting the best jobs and finding the right people. The most important thing you'll ever do if you are trying to build, rebuild, or even turn around an organization is hire the best people and keep them. Jeffrey E. Christian's solution: Think like a headhunter. He gives readers the benefits of his twenty years of experience interviewing thousands of CEOs and potential CEOs and tells you how to conduct an interview and spot great leadership qualities in job candidates, exactly what to do and say to keep a valuable employee from resigning, how to expand your network to find the best emerging talent, key strategies and instructions for choosing and getting the most out of a search firm, what it takes for ambitious and talented people to get noticed and get the next big job or promotion. The Career Makers John R. Sibbald, 1992. The first edition of The Career Makers caused a major stir in the business world when it was published in 1990 because it identified and ranked the top 100 executive recruiters in the United States, a very elusive and exclusive group of power brokers. For the first time, job seekers, corporations looking to hire, and executive recruiters themselves could know who were the most effective individual headhunters to work with in building a career or locating the most capable employees. In these especially difficult times, their role has become even more important as companies downsize and more and more job seekers turn to headhunters. In this revised and expanded edition of The Career Makers, author John Sibbald himself, an executive recruiter who has managed more than 500 executive searches, has conducted a completely new survey to identify the top 150 powers behind the throne His guide is the result of a nationwide survey of the Fortune 1000 corporations the 500 largest private companies hundreds of other employees and the top recruiting firms Fully updated this new edition reflects recent profound changes in the North American job market and profiles not 100 but 150 of the top headhunters including those from Canada and Mexico It also features for the first time anywhere the selection of America s academy companies These are career makers in their own right They are the top boot camps for developing management talent and are ranked by both industry and function The Career Makers has a light side too It is entertainingly peppered with the latest war stories of industry giants In the only book to actually rank executive recruiters Sibbald includes everything you need to know about these exclusive individuals who they are in what areas they specialize and most importantly how you can work with them to recruit top talent for your organization or build the career you want No matter whether you are in the position of hiring or being hired The Career Makers will be an essential tool
