

The background of the entire cover is a dense, close-up photograph of cannabis plants. It features numerous green, serrated leaves and several small, developing flower buds (trichomes) that are covered in fine, white, hair-like structures. The lighting is natural, highlighting the texture of the leaves and the intricate details of the buds.

Marijuana Medical Papers 1839 1972 Cannabis Collected Clinical Papers:

Marijuana Tod H. Mikuriya, 2007-11 As a full time research consultant at the N I M H Center of Narcotics and Drug Abuse Studies Dr Tod Mikuriya discovered just how much the English and American medical profession has known about cannabis for the past 130 years Having access to priceless original documents he has compiled this authoritative and fascinating collection of medical papers on marijuana From 1839 when the herb was first introduced into the Western pharmacopoeia to present research with THC the anthology offers rich insights into the whole social history of medicine The studies published herein convey a wide variety of critical information ranging from laboratory tests performed on animals and human subjects to anthropological descriptions of marijuana use by African women during labor A number of unusual and seldom seen illustrations from pharmaceutical catalogues in the days when Parke Davis and others marketed legal marijuana as a cure for coughs and corns are both instructive and entertaining In the section of clinical and pharmacological studies a deep look is taken at the range of therapeutic effects attributed to a plant which has had prescribed medical uses for more than 2700 years and is currently used by an estimated 250 million people If not always conclusive these studies nonetheless dramatically show that marijuana has potentially great medical value The impressive accumulation of information regarding it has been unfortunately relegated to the dust bin for decades by puritanical legislators and medical practitioners ignorant or unheeding of existing scholarship in the field The final chapter analyzes the reasons behind the 1937 Tax Act which outlawed the use of marijuana driving it underground and offers some disturbing conclusions based on hitherto unpublished official hearings and interviews with former government officials Amidst the marijuana referendums judicial challenges and states vs federal legislation Marijuana Medical Papers provides essential information most of it never before available except in scarce out of print medical journals on a topic of tremendous current interest Endorsements Dr Mikuriya collected and brought out in Marijuana Medical Papers material that the medical schools should have been teaching The reader Dr Mikuriya had in mind for MMP was a colleague who realized that he d learned nothing about cannabis in medical school Fred Gardner editor O Shaughnessy s Journal of the California Cannabis Research Medical Group Dr Tod was the undisputed father of the modern Medical Cannabis Movement Now it s our turn to follow his lead Andrew Glazier activist owner oaksterdam com I first read this book in 1973 and have read it over and over and over again all my life I still love this book it has changed my life Anyone interested in the subject of cannabis should read this book Jack Herer author The Emperor Wears No Clothes Marijuana Medical Papers makes a valuable contribution in documenting the early medical history of marijuana It is a collection that will be referred to for generations to come Ed Rosenthal marijuana researcher and writer The pre 1900 I ll try it on myself and describe what happens reports in this book not only abound with descriptive techniques that should still be copied but they are truly entertaining Journal of the American Medical Association This is probably the best compendium available of the major studies and observations that have been made on marijuana and its derivatives during the past 135 years Dana L Farnsworth M D American Journal of Psychiatry This treasure trove of shrewd clinical observation should fascinate physicians interested in the history of their craft Edward M Brecher Medical World News

Medical Marijuana Samoon Ahmad, Kevin Hill, 2020-07-29 Written by experienced clinicians for practicing physicians and other health care providers this timely handbook presents today's available information on cannabis and its uses in all areas of patient care Medical Marijuana A Clinical Handbook summarizes what is currently known about the positive and negative health impacts of cannabis detailed pharmacological profiles of both THC and CBD considerations for each medical specialty treatment approaches used by practicing clinicians and insights into the history of cannabis and the current regulatory environment in the United States This concise easy to navigate guide is an invaluable resource for physicians and residents nurse practitioners pharmacists and other clinicians who seek reliable clinical guidelines in this growing area of health care

Cannabis in Medical Practice Mary Lynn Mathre, R.N., 2010-07-27 Because marijuana is a Schedule I drug under the Controlled Substances Act the therapeutic benefits of cannabis are no longer mentioned in the formal education of health care professionals Doctors who do learn of the drug's therapeutic value are often intimidated by its illegal status Thus millions of patients afflicted with such illnesses as glaucoma AIDS cancer multiple sclerosis spinal cord injuries seizure disorders and chronic pain are denied access to information about the drug's benefits and in many cases suffer needlessly Straightforward and nonpoliticized information on the therapeutic uses of cannabis is provided here by medical legal and scientific professionals Legal issues a worldwide history of therapeutic cannabis and a discussion of its pharmacology are covered Specific medical uses are then examined including its application for sufferers of cancer AIDS glaucoma and seizure disorders and its potential use in psychiatry Dosages and administration of cannabis are explored along with considerations on the use of the drug during pregnancy and the risks of addiction and dependency

Cannabis, Sacred and Profane Christopher Partridge, 2024-08-22 Focussing on the ways in which cannabis has been demonized sacralized and normalized Christopher Partridge analyses the complex and often difficult relationship Western societies have had with the plant since the nineteenth century After an introduction to cannabis and its uses the book discusses how and why it was constructed as a profane influence and a marker of deviance It then examines the emergence of medicinal cannabis showing how this has contributed to its normalization and even its sacralization Finally there is a discussion of sacred cannabis which looks at its use within modern occultism Rastafari and several cannabis churches Overall the book provides a cultural history of cannabis in the modern world which exposes the underlying reasons for the various and changing attitudes to this popular psychoactive substance

Endocannabinoids and Related Lipids in Chronic Pain Niclas Stensson, 2018-05-03 In Europe approximately one in five adults experience chronic pain pain that lasts more than three months Chronic pain is a significant problem not only for those people suffering from chronic pain but also for society The prevalence of chronic pain is higher in women and lower socioeconomic groups Although chronic pain often originates in a specific site it may eventually spread to several sites transforming into chronic widespread pain CWP a condition evident in about 10% of the adult population Approximately 1 2 5 4% are classified with fibromyalgia FM In addition to CWP common symptoms of FM include stiffness fatigue sleep disturbances and cognitive dysfunction and common co morbidities include depression and anxiety Although FM CWP has been reported to alter both central and peripheral nociceptive mechanisms no objective biomarkers have been found that correlate with CWP FM and no standard examinations such as blood test X ray or computed tomography can provide support for a diagnosis Because there are no objective biomarkers that correlate with the pathophysiological processes associated with CWP FM this debilitating disease is difficult to diagnose and ultimately treat However there are some promising therapeutic targets for chronic pain with inter alia analgesic anti inflammatory and stress modulating properties the endocannabinoids ECs arachidonoyl ethanolamide AEA and 2 arachidonoylglycerol 2 AG and their related lipids oleoyl ethanolamide OEA palmitoyl ethanolamide PEA and stearoyl ethanolamide SEA This thesis investigates whether ECs and the related N acylethanolamines NAEs can be used as potential biomarkers for CWP FM Specifically the studies compared the peripheral and systemic levels of ECs and NAEs in 121 women with CWP FM and in 137 healthy controls in two different cohorts In addition the correlation between lipid levels and common pain characteristics such as intensity sensitivity and duration were investigated The EC and related lipid levels were measured using liquid chromatography in combination with tandem mass spectrometry Multivariate data analysis was used for biomarker evaluation Compared to the healthy controls the CWP FM patients had significantly higher concentrations of OEA PEA and SEA in muscle and plasma $p < 0.05$ and significantly higher 2 AG in plasma $p < 0.01$ These results may indicate that NAEs are mobilized differently in painful muscles compared with pain free muscles Moreover increased systemic levels of NAEs and 2 AG in patients might be signs of ongoing low grade inflammation in CWP FM These findings contribute to a better understanding of how peripheral and systemic factors maintain and activate chronic pain Although the investigated lipids have statistically significant effects but biologically uncertain role in the clinical manifestations of CWP FM Thus plasma lipids are not a good biomarker for CWP FM Nevertheless increased lipid levels indicate a metabolic asymmetry in CWP FM a finding that could serve as a basis for more research on pain management
