Grade Three

Active Living

Expectation/Big Idea	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3	Level 4
Active participation and fitness	Thomas is beginning to understand the importance of being physically active in his daily life. He displays behaviours that enhance his readiness and willingness to participate in a variety of activities (e.g., attentive listening, positive attitude, knowing what to do, asking for help). This was demonstrated during organized games.	All times, Thomas knows the importance of being physically active in his daily life. He describes different activities that can strengthen his heart and lungs (e.g., running, walking, etc.). In addition, he can state reasons for being physically active every day (e.g., to have fun, to improve health). This was evident during class discussions.	Thomas knows the importance of being physically active in his daily life. He selects different degrees of exertion using simple movement methods (e.g., feeling his chest for a faster heartbeat). In addition, he understands factors that contribute to his physical enjoyment (e.g., feeling of accomplishment, fun, etc.).	Thomas clearly knows the importance of being physically active in his daily life. He diligently sets realistic personal, as well as, group fitness goals and works towards achieving them. In addition, he understands the importance of participating fully in activities (e.g., being organized).
Safety	With assistance, Thomas is responsible for his own safety and the safety of others. During our gym classes, he knows the importance of being safe and follows the rules.	Thomas is responsible for his own safety and the safety of others. During our gym classes, he knows the importance of being safe and follows the rules.	Thomas is responsible for his own safety and the safety of others. During our gym classes, he knows the importance of being safe and follows the rules.	Thomas is always responsible for his own safety and that of others. During our gym classes, he promotes a safe environment by following routines, dressing appropriately, cooperating and communicating with others about potential safety risks.
Next Steps:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> As a next step, Thomas should be encouraged to participate in physical activities for his fullest potential. Thomas should be encouraged to be responsible for his own safety and the safety of others. Thomas is encouraged to be more responsible during gym class (listening and following) so that he can participate safely. Thomas is encouraged to cooperate with others during games by taking turns and playing fair. All times, Thomas should display his knowledge of safety-routines when playing. Thomas would benefit from setting achievable fitness goals for himself at home. All school, Thomas is encouraged to follow gym routines and listen to instructions so he can participate to his full capacity. Thomas is encouraged to participate in extra-curricular clubs and teams so he can try new activities, as well as, improve his skills.
