sustain the region's Golden Age. It also acknowledges the future challenges that Poland faces and that moving to the core of the European economy will require further reforms and changes in Poland's developmental character. The Palgrave Companion to Cambridge Economics Robert A. Dynamic Development, Accounting and Relative Income Traps Patrick A. Imam, Jonathan R. W. Temple, 2024-11 Previous research suggests that economy-wide poverty traps are rarely observed in the data. In this paper, we explore a related hypothesis: low-income countries rarely improve their position relative to the US. Using finite state Markov chains, we show that upwards mobility is indeed limited. Since capital output ratios are similar across countries and human capital is also converging, the persistence of low relative income seems to originate in the persistence of low relative TFP. We study the dynamics of relative TFP and how they interact with absolute levels of human capital, casting new light on the future of convergence.

Ethics and Economics Johan Graafland, 2021-09-30 This textbook applies economic ethics to evaluate the free market system and enables students to examine the impact of free markets using the three main ethical approaches: utilitarianism, principle-based ethics, and virtue ethics. Ethics and Economics systematically links empirical research to these ethical questions with a focus on the core topics of happiness, inequality, and virtues. Each chapter offers a recommended further reading list. The final chapter provides a practical method for applying the different ethical approaches to morally evaluate an economic policy proposal and an example of the methodology being applied to a real-life policy. This book will give students a clear theoretical and methodological toolkit for analyzing the ethics of market policies, making it a valuable resource for courses on economic ethics and economic philosophy. Cultural Values, Institutions, and Trust Seung Hyun Kim, Sangmook Kim, 2023-03-03 Using experimental surveys as a primary source, Kim and Kim compare a wide range of developed countries to assess the determinants of generalized social trust. With data from Belgium, France, Italy, Japan, Singapore, South Korea, the Netherlands, and the United States, Kim and Kim present a detailed picture of trust at the individual level across different ethnic groups and across different regions with economic and cultural distinctions. They focus on a range of concepts including generalized trust and familism, causal relationships among cultural values, particularized trust, and institutional trust at the individual level and relationships between culture wealth and governance at the macro level In doing so they consolidate substantial quantitative data with rigorous theoretical analysis and advance our understanding of social trust and prosociality in general A valuable resource for researchers and advanced students in political science sociology and social psychology around the world The Oxford Handbook of Women and the Economy Susan L. Averett, Laura M. Argys, Saul D. Hoffman, 2018-05-15 The transformation of women's lives over the past century is among the most significant and far reaching of social and economic phenomena affecting not only women but also their partners children and indeed nearly every person on the planet In developed and developing countries alike women are acquiring more education marrying later having fewer children and spending a far greater amount of their adult lives in the labor force Yet because women remain the primary caregivers of children issues such as work life balance and the glass ceiling have given rise to critical policy discussions in the developed world In developing countries many women lack access to reproductive technology and are often relegated to jobs in the informal sector where pay is variable and job security is weak Considerable occupational segregation and stubborn gender pay gaps persist around the world The Oxford Handbook of Women and the Economy is the first comprehensive collection of scholarly essays to address these issues using the powerful framework of economics Each chapter written by an acknowledged expert or team of experts reviews the key trends surveys the relevant economic theory and summarizes and critiques the empirical research literature By providing a clear eyed view of what we know what we do not know and what the critical unanswered questions are this Handbook provides an invaluable and wide ranging examination of the many changes that have occurred in women's economic lives Boosting Productivity in Sub-Saharan Africa Cesar Calderon, 2021-12-17 The rising concentration of extreme poverty in Sub Saharan Africa over the past quarter century can be attributed to the fact that economic growth has been slow productivity levels are still low and growth has not been inclusive enough to put a big dent in poverty What explains the dismal performance on labor productivity in Sub Saharan Africa compared with the rest of the developing world This report argues that first physical capital is scarce and economic activities in the region have low capital intensity relative to other regions Second although human capital levels were relatively similar in Sub Saharan Africa relative to a group of East Asian Pacific countries in 1960 insufficient investment and poor outcomes led not only to relatively lower levels but also to low quality of human capital Finally scarce resources compounded by the inefficiencies in their allocation across productive units with different levels of productivity translated into low aggregate labor productivity Sub Saharan Africa needs policies to boost productivity across all sectors of economic activity especially in those sectors in which most poor people make their living The region needs policies that improve productivity in the agriculture sector foster rural development and create jobs for youth who are joining the labor force OECD Reviews of Innovation Policy: Kazakhstan 2017 OECD, 2017-07-10 This report provides an independent and comparative assessment of the overall performance of Kazakhstan's innovation system since independence with recommendations on improving performance drawing on the experience of other OECD countries in innovation processes systems and policies While A Mandate to Grow Eduardo A.
