evidence of rudimentary writing activity and abilities document higher forms of female literacy and highlight women's mastery of formal rhetorical and epistolary conventions. The book also stresses that letters are unparalleled as intimate and immediate records of family relationships and as media for personal and self-reflective forms of female expression. Read as documents that inscribe social and gender relations, letters shed light on the complex range of women's personal relationships as female power and authority fluctuated and negotiated on an individual basis. Furthermore, correspondence highlights the important political roles played by early modern women. Female letter writers were integral in cultivating and maintaining patronage and kinship networks; they were active as suitors for crown favour and operated as political intermediaries and patrons in their own right, using letters to elicit influence. Letters thus help to locate differing forms of female power within the family locality and occasionally on the wider political stage and offer invaluable primary evidence from which to reconstruct the lives of early modern women.

Women and Gender in the Early Modern Low Countries, 1500 - 1750 Sarah Joan Moran, Amanda C. Pipkin, 2019-05-07 Women and Gender in the Early Modern Low Countries 1500-1750 brings together research on women and gender across the Low Countries, a culturally contiguous region that was split by the Eighty Years War into the Protestant Dutch Republic in the North and the Spanish-controlled Catholic Hapsburg Netherlands in the South. The authors of this interdisciplinary volume highlight women's experiences of social class as family members before the law and as authors, artists, and patrons, as well as the workings of gender in art and literature. In studies ranging from microhistories to surveys, the book reveals the Low Countries as a remarkable historical laboratory for its topic and points to the opportunities the region holds for future scholarly investigations. The Little Street Linda Stone-Ferrier, 2022-08-23

An interdisciplinary study of the central role that the neighborhood played in seventeenth-century Dutch painting and culture. The neighborhood was a principal organizing structure of Dutch cities in the seventeenth century, and each had its own regulations, administrators, social networks, events, and diverse population of residents. Linda Stone-Ferrier argues that this sense of community contributed to the steady demand for pictures portraying aspects of this culture. These paintings by such artists as Jan Steen and Pieter de Hooch reinforced the role and values of the neighborhood. Through close readings of such works by Steen and De Hooch and among others Gerrit Dou, Gabriel Metsu, Jacob van Ruisdael, and Johannes Vermeer, Stone-Ferrier deftly considers social history, urban studies, anthropology, and women's studies in this penetrating exploration. Her new interpretations of seventeenth-century Dutch painting across genres, scenes of streets, domesticity, professions, and
