Rennie,2020-07-31 Looking at texts written throughout the careers of Edith Wharton Ellen La Motte Mary Borden Thomas Boyd F Scott Fitzgerald Laurence Stallings and Ernest Hemingway American Writers and World War I argues that authors war writing continuously evolved in response to developments in their professional and personal lives Recent research has focused on constituencies of identity such as gender race and politics registered in American Great War writing Rather than being dominated by their perceived membership of such socio political categories this study argues that writers reacted to and represented the war in complex ways which were frequently linked to the exigencies of maintaining a career as a professional author War writing was implicated in and influenced by wider cultural forces such as governmental censorship the publishing business advertising and the Hollywood film industry American Writers and World War I argues that even authors hallmark anti war works are in fact characterized by an awareness of the war s nuanced effects on society and individuals By tracking authors war writing throughout their entire careers in well known texts autobiography correspondence and neglected works this study contends that writers reactions were multifaceted and subject to change in response to their developments as writers and individuals This work also uncovers the hitherto unexplored importance of American cultural and literary precedents which offered writers means of assessing the war Ultimately the volume argues American World War I writing was highly personal complex and idiosyncratic
