Rulers, Religion, and Riches Jared Rubin, 2017-02-16 For centuries following the spread of Islam the Middle East was far ahead of Europe Yet the modern economy was born in Europe Why was it not born in the Middle East In this book Jared Rubin examines the role that Islam played in this reversal of fortunes It argues that the religion itself is not to blame the importance of religious legitimacy in Middle Eastern politics was the primary culprit Muslim religious authorities were given an important seat at the political bargaining table which they used to block important advancements such as the printing press and lending at interest In Europe however the Church played a weaker role in legitimizing rule especially where Protestantism spread indeed the Reformation was successful due to the spread of printing which was blocked in the Middle East It was precisely in those Protestant nations especially England and the Dutch Republic where the modern economy was born

Barry, 2021-12-06 This study defends a version of epistemological relativism taking as its point of departure some key arguments from the later work of Ludwig Wittgenstein especially those concerning rule following and forms of life An opposition is established between the dominant form of epistemological realism that which relies upon truth conditions and theories in which knowledge and truth are fundamentally dependent upon context It is argued in Part One that Wittgenstein proves the necessity for a contextual understanding of knowledge Part Two develops a clearer idea of that context using Thomas Kuhn s concept of paradigm It is argued that this concept has been largely misunderstood even by Kuhn but that it can be developed to be remarkably consistent with Wittgenstein s arguments All those philosophers historians sociologists and others who wish finally to understand the complex issues involved in debates about epistemological relativism will find this book invaluable
