

The background of the image is a classical painting of a medieval castle or fortress situated on a hill. The architecture features stone walls, battlements, and a prominent tower with a conical roof. The surrounding landscape is lush with greenery and trees. In the distance, rolling hills or mountains are visible under a soft, hazy sky. The overall color palette is warm, with earthy tones and a hint of golden light, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. Overlaid on this scene is the text of the poem's title and author.

He Can See Heaven The Hierophant:

He Can See Heaven J B Keats, 2015-06-07 A cascading adventure of discovery intrigue and romance He Can See Heaven tells the tale of Ellen Shea an intrepid graduate student on a perilous search through exotic locales for a trove of lost scrolls Penned by Saint Papias and known to history as the Logia the scrolls are the first record of Jesus eyewitness accounts older and truer than the New Testament They unveil a new perspective of the man god and predict the coming of a doomsday prophet the Hierophant the one who can see heaven Along the way Ellen meets a cavalcade of intriguing characters including two beguiling men polar opposites who tantalize her mind and inflame her desires The text depicts a second journey that of the scrolls themselves from their origin in ancient Anatolia through Judea to Constantine s Council at Nicaea and then west to Iberia and the medieval kingdoms of the Visigoths Moors and Spaniards at last coming to rest in modern Granada A raucous ride through Europe North Africa and New York City this uncommon novel ponders the nature of faith and its professors concluding with the poignant appearance of the Hierophant and his timeless message
