Informal Technology Transfer Between Firms Cooperation Through Information Trading:

Informal Technology Transfer Between Firms Stephan Schrader, 2015-08-05 Excerpt from Informal Technology Transfer Between Firms Cooperation Through Information Trading Employees frequently give technical information or advice to colleagues in other firms including direct competitors This paper addresses whether this information transfer is in the economic interests of the firms involved It is hypothesized that employees trade information within the economic interests of their firms Conditions are discussed in which information trading creates an economic advantage to the participating firms Data on specific information transfer decisions were obtained from a survey of 294 technically oriented middle level managers from the U S specialty steel and mini mill industry The observed pattern of information transfer strongly supports the hypotheses 1 that employees trade information and 2 that such trading is desirable from a firm s point of view Furthermore the data suggest a positive link between the participation of a firm s employees in informal information transfer networks and the economic performance of the firm Indeed it can be in a firm s interest to make its boundaries penetrable for informal information transfer rather than to discourage such transfers About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Intellectual Property Management Klaus Jennewein, 2006-03-30 Innovation is a source of competitive advantage In other words firms may leverage innovation to generate rents at least temporarily And this is intended to be a self sustained business model part of the rent extracted from the market may be re invested into new technological developments which in turn permit additional innovations thus regenerating the sources of rents This is the positive loop of innovation In this sense business would be a permanent hunt for innovations in search of rents Yet innovations need to be protected if firms want to benefit from rents over long periods of time However the strategic management literature tends to suggest that patents are a weak protection against aggressive imitators Secrecy may help but we also know that technology ends up leaking in most cases Speed in new developments to cut time to market may be another way of protecting the technological advance of the firm But again this may not be enough as start ups may out compete the established firm in the race for innovation This is where Dr Klaus Jennewein's key idea comes into the picture The core of his thesis is that brand equity may be combined to technological protections such as patents to build a multi layer complex intricate shield to protect the sources of rents against competitors and imitators

Learning by Doing James Bessen, 2015-04-28 Bessen sets out to refute the arguments of techno pessimists relying on economic analysis and on a fresh reading of history The Wall Street Journal Technology is constantly changing our world leading to more efficient production But where once technological advancements dramatically increased wages the median wage has remained stagnant over the past three decades Many of today's machines have taken over the work of humans destroying old jobs while increasing profits for business owners and raising the possibility of ever widening economic inequality Here economist and software company founder James Bessen discusses why these remarkable advances have so far benefited only a select few He argues the need for unique policies to develop the knowledge and skills necessary to implement rapidly evolving technologies Currently this technical knowledge is mostly unstandardized and difficult to acquire learned through job experience rather than in classrooms but labor markets rarely provide strong incentives for learning on the job Basing his analysis on intensive research into economic history as well as today's labor markets Bessen explores why the benefits of technology can take decades to emerge Although the right policies can hasten the process policy has moved in the wrong direction protecting politically influential interests to the detriment of emerging technologies and broadly shared prosperity This is a thoughtful look at what leaders need to do to ensure success not only for the next quarter but for society in the long term Everyone agrees that education is the key to wage growth But what kind of education This enlightening and insightful book shows that economic history can provide some useful and surprising answers Hal Varian chief economist at Google

Managing Trade Relations in the New World Economy Thomas Andersson, 2013-10-18 Managing Trade Relations in the New World Economy analyses the implications of the new world economy for global trade Thomas Andersson explores how manufactured exports have increased exponentially while the western economies have accrued massive current account deficits Warning against the dangers of protectionism he argues that the future of the world trading system may depend upon the external policies of the EC

China's Technological Leapfrogging and Economic Catch-up Keun Lee, 2021-12-14 Chapters 1 and 10 from this book are published open access and free to read or download from Oxford Academic After the miraculous economic growth known as the Beijing Consensus China is now facing a slowdown The attention has moved to the issue of the middle income trap This book deals with this interesting issue in the context of China It also discusses China's limitations and future prospects especially after the rise of a new cold war between China and the US namely the question of whether China would fall into another trap called the Thucydides trap or conflict with the existing hegemon as a rising power In sum this book plays around three key terms namely the Beijing Consensus the Middle Income Trap and the Thucydides trap and applies a Schumpeterian approach to these concepts It also conducts a comparative analysis that examines China from an economic catch up perspective An economic catch up starts from learning and imitating a forerunner but finishing the race successfully requires taking a different path along the road This act is also known as leapfrogging which implies a latecomer doing something different from and often ahead of a forerunner Technological leapfrogging may lead to technological catch up which means reducing the technological gap and then finally to economic catch up in living standards per capita income and economic size GDP economic power This linkage from technological leapfrogging and catch up to economic catch up corresponds exactly with a similar linkage from the Beijing Consensus to escaping or not the middle income and the Thucydides traps One conclusion from this book is that China's successful rise as a global industrial power has been due to its strategy of technological leapfrogging which has enabled China to move beyond the middle income trap and possibly the Thucydides trap although at a slower speed Transforming Organizations Thomas A. Kochan, Michael

Useem, 1992-02-06 This book examines how organizations can and should transform their practices to compete in a world economy Research results from a multi disciplinary team of MIT researchers along with the experiences and insights of a select group of industry practitioners are integrated into a model that stresses the need for systemic and transformative rather than piecemeal or incremental changes in organization practices and public policy This integration of research and experience results in an argument for a new organizational learning model one capable of gaining advantage from employee diversity cooperation across organizational boundaries strategic restructuring and advanced technology The book begins with a foreword by Lester C Thurow Personal States Catherine Alexander, 2002 Catherine Alexander charts how Turkish people both within and outside the state bureaucracy attempt to personalise the impersonality of the state Based on a detailed study of the nationalized Turkish Sugar Corporation she considers how people from the highest levels of the state bureaucracy to farming villages understand the state and how in turn they imagine themselves to be perceived The narratives and metaphors used in these constructions draw on resources close to hand such as the material organization of state factory compounds state personnel encountered in the course of everyday life and the image of the family structure By

also exploring notions of state and personhood within the highest echelons of the administration itself Alexander shows how ideas of the state recede once one is actually within For officials the state becomes other institutions and Ministries with which they have little contact The continual process of striving to make connections with other groups and people occurs both at all hierarchical levels of the Sugar Corporation and between farmers and factory engineers This elegant nuanced ethnography of modernity will cause scholars of state institutions across a broad range of disciplines radically to rethink what the state actually is and the relations that create it thus taking understandings of the state to an entirely new level

Open Innovation in R&D Departments Verena Nedon, 2015-04-22 Based on interviews with R D managers and a survey amongst R D employees Verena Nedon shows that perceived social pressure has an immense impact on R D employees working in OI projects Employees attitude regardless of whether positive or negative and perceived behavioral control play an important but not dominant role The study also implies that intrinsic motivators have a stronger effect on employees willingness to engage in knowledge exchange with external partners than extrinsic components By targeting a set of relevant questions related to the human side of open innovation the study significantly contributes to the micro foundation of OI research and sheds light on the hitherto neglected perspective of employees engaged in OI projects The findings are relevant for scholars companies already following the OI approach and OI newcomers

Local Dynamics of Industrial Upgrading Yi Liu, 2020-04-27 This book examines industrial upgrading in China s Pearl River Delta PRD with a specific focus on how strategic coupling impacts industrial upgrading from the perspective of relational economic geography It shows that firms in the PRD have been struggling after serving as low tier suppliers and subcontractors for transnational corporations for two decades since the 1980s opening reform in China Indigenous innovation and direct state support have fostered the success of a few firms but not the majority In response many local firms are now taking advantage of the opportunities to be found in global production networks which link the PRD with the global economy This book elaborates on how these opportunities are embedded and identified in global production networks with regard to different types of strategic coupling It not only renews the theory of strategic coupling in economic geography but also demonstrates potential strategies that latecomer firms can pursue and which can have major implications for many developing countries and regions

The Oxford Handbook of Organizational Change and Innovation Marshall Scott Poole, Andrew Van de Ven, 2021-05-20 Organizational change and innovation are central and enduring issues in management theory and practice Dramatic changes in population demographics technology competitive survival and social economic and environmental health and sustainability concerns means the need to understand how organizations respond to these shifts through change and innovation has never been greater Why and what organizations change is generally well known how organizations change is therefore the central focus of this Handbook It focuses on processes of change or the sequence of events in which organizational characteristics and activities change and develop over time and the factors that influence these processes with the organization as the central unit of analysis Across the diverse and wide ranging contributions three central questions evolve what is the nature of change and process what are the key concepts and models for understanding organization change and innovation and how should we study change and innovation This Handbook presents critical evolving scholarship from leading experts across a range of disciplines and explores its implications for future research and practice Organization and Economic Behavior Anna Grandori,2001 Presents all the basic elements of organizational theory and behaviour Different approaches are analysed with a strong focus on intergrating sociological psychological and economic contributors to the subject

The Dynamics of Industrial Collaboration Anne Plunket,Colette Voisin,Bertrand Bellon,2001-01-01 The Dynamics of Industrial Collaboration revisits and reformulates issues previously raised by inter firm collaboration The latest research in collaboration processes and evaluation of cooperation and industrial and research networks is presented by way of both empirical and theoretical studies The authors use several theoretical perspectives to explain inter firm and inter institutional collaboration the theory of transaction costs and contracts evolutionary theory and the resource based view The book illustrates that none of these approaches are dominant

Innovation in General Purpose Technologies : How Knowledge Gains when It Is Shared Nina Teichert,2013 This book tackles the different aspects of the creation and transmission of knowledge in the context of the characteristics of a general purpose technology Nanotechnology is investigated as showcase example Particular emphasis is put on the role of the composition of knowledge as well as the corresponding knowledge spillovers on the one hand and on the concrete impact of collaboration and knowledge sharing in innovator networks on the other hand

Revolutionizing Innovation Dietmar Harhoff,Karim R. Lakhani,2016-03-04 A comprehensive and multidisciplinary view of the emerging paradigm of user and open innovation offering both theoretical and empirical perspectives The last two decades have witnessed an extraordinary growth of new models of managing and organizing the innovation process that emphasizes users over producers Large parts of the knowledge economy now routinely rely on users communities and open innovation approaches to solve important technological and organizational problems This view of innovation pioneered by the economist Eric von Hippel counters the dominant paradigm which cast the profit seeking incentives of firms as the main driver of technical change In a series of influential writings von Hippel and colleagues found empirical evidence that flatly contradicted the producer centered model of innovation Since then the study of user driven innovation has continued and expanded with further empirical exploration of a distributed model of innovation that includes communities and platforms in a variety of contexts and with the development of theory to explain the economic underpinnings of this still emerging paradigm This volume provides a comprehensive and multidisciplinary view of the field of user and open innovation reflecting advances in the field over the last several decades The contributors including many colleagues of Eric von Hippel offer both theoretical and empirical perspectives from such diverse fields as economics the history of science and technology law management and policy The empirical contexts for their studies range from household goods to financial services After discussing the fundamentals of user innovation the contributors cover communities and innovation legal aspects of user and community innovation new roles for user innovators user interactions with firms and user innovation in practice describing experiments toolkits and crowdsourcing and crowdfunding Contributors Efe Aksuyek Yochai Benkler James Bessen Jörn H Block Annika Bock Helena Canh o Jeroen P J de Jong Emmanuelle Fauchart Dominique Foray Nikolaus Franke Johann Füller Helena Garriga Fred Gault Fredrik Hacklin Dietmar Harhoff Joachim Henkel Cornelius Herstatt Christoph Hiennerth Venkat Kuppaswamy Karim R Lakhani Christopher Lettl Christian Lütjhe Ethan Mollick Hidehiko Nishikawa Alessandro Nuvolari Susumu Ogawa Pedro Oliveira Stefan Perkmann Berger Frank Piller Christina Raasch Susanne Roiser Fabrizio Salvador Pamela Samuelson Tim Schweisfurth Sonali K Shah Christoph Stockstrom Katherine J Strandburg Stefan Thomke Andrew W Torrance Mary Tripsas Georg von Krogh

Controlling Collaboration between Firms Angelo Ditillo, Ariela Caglio, 2011-04-01 Shows how accounting information and control mechanisms are used in decision making planning and control at an inter organizational level and how accounting tools and techniques may support the development and management of external relationships with strategic partners In global companies the use of management control mechanisms has increasingly become decentralised from the management accounting department this book covers these issues In all functional areas marketing operations human resources etc those who are expected to be able to analyse and interpret accounting information collected from external partners have to exercise cost control to ensure that profit targets are achieved and understand to understand the nature of collaborative partnerships and illustrate the variables that explain the choice of different control modes in the various contexts of cooperation to describe the characteristics of management accounting mechanisms for cross boundary settings such as collaborative programmes and budgets inter firm performance measurement systems and inter organisational cost management techniques to describe empirical evidence on control choices management accounting practices and on management accountants roles in collaborative relationships to present a framework of control patterns and specific Accounting Information Network AIN configurations that provide some novel theoretical insights on inter organisational accounting and control and some guidance to practitioners operating in inter firm collaborative settings
