Passage #1

Reading Informational Text
Integrate Information

Directions: Read the passage below. After reading the passage, answer the questions as best you can.

SHARKS VS. DOLPHINS

Sharks

Sharks are considered a type of fish, not a mammal. This means they have gills that they use to breathe underwater and lay eggs. They use their gills to extract oxygen from the water. Did you know there are over 400 species of sharks? Sharks have been around for a long time - some are older than dinosaurs! That's over 100 million years old! Even though sharks are not the most intelligent animals in the sea, they are strong and mighty. They use their power to hunt for food and protect themselves from other animals.

Dolphins

Unlike sharks, dolphins are considered mammals. This means they are like people and many other animals on land. Like other mammals, they give live births and nurse their young with milk. They also help protect their young until they are old enough to defend themselves. Dolphins use a blowhole for breathing; instead of gills, they need to return to the surface for oxygen.

uses e.g. independent reading for early literacy as well as multiple examinations of e-books in home and school contexts using a variety of research methods and/or theoretical frames. The studies of children's engagement with diverse types of e-books in different social contexts provide readers with a contemporary and comprehensive understanding of this topic. Research has demonstrated that ever-increasing numbers of children use digital devices as part of their daily routine. Yet despite children's frequent use of e-books from an early age, there is a limited understanding regarding how those e-books are actually being used at home and school. As more e-books become available, it is important to examine the educational benefits and limitations of different types of e-books for children. So far, studies on the topic have presented inconsistent findings regarding potential benefits and limitations of e-books for early literacy activities, e.g. independent reading, shared reading. The studies in this book aim to fill such gaps in the literature.
