Informing The News The Need For Knowledge Based Journalism:

Informing the News Thomas E. Patterson, 2013-10-08 As the journalist Walter Lippmann noted nearly a century ago democracy falters if there is no steady supply of trustworthy and relevant news Today s journalists are not providing it Too often reporters give equal weight to facts and biased opinion stir up small controversies and substitute infotainment for real news Even when they get the facts rights they often misjudge the context in which they belong Information is the lifeblood of a healthy democracy Public opinion and debate suffer when citizens are misinformed about current affairs as is increasingly the case Though the failures of today s communication system cannot be blamed solely on the news media they are part of the problem and the best hope for something better Patterson proposes knowledge based journalism as a corrective Unless journalists are more deeply informed about the subjects they cover they will continue to misinterpret them and to be vulnerable to manipulation by their sources In this book derived from a multi year initiative of the Carnegie Corporation and the Knight Foundation Patterson calls for nothing less than a major overhaul of journalism practice and education The book speaks not only to journalists but to all who are concerned about the integrity of the information on which America s democracy depends

Media-State Relations in Emerging Democracies A. Hadland, 2015-05-05 The news media and the state are locked in a battle of wills in the world's emerging democratic states It is a struggle that will determine whether or not democracy flourishes or withers in the 21st century Using a number of case studies including South Africa this book evaluates what is at stake Polls, Expectations, and Elections Richard Craig, 2014-11-13 In modern American presidential campaigning scholars and citizens have bemoaned the effects of electronic media on voters Much has been written about the effects of television ads media management perceived bias and other issues yet one element of today's media environment that most Americans would recognize has not been identified in the public mind expectation setting Journalists regularly tell audiences what actions candidates should take on the campaign trail based solely on whether they're leading or trailing in public opinion polls Polls Expectations and Elections

TV News Making in U S Presidential Campaigns follows the rise and proliferation of this phenomenon through a comprehensive content analysis of transcripts of CBS Evening News broadcasts during presidential election campaigns from 1968 to 2012. Richard Craig uses numerous examples from these transcripts to illustrate how television news has gone from simply reporting poll data to portraying it as nearly the only motivation for anything candidates do while campaigning. He argues that with the combination of heightened coverage of campaigns and the omnipresence of poll data, campaign coverage has largely become a day to day series of contests with candidates portrayed as succeeding or failing each day to meet expectations of what the candidate at a given position in the polls should do on the campaign trail. Highlighting the change in news media and candidate coverage, Polls, Expectations and Elections will appeal to scholars of media studies, political communication and journalism.

Do Facts Matter? Jennifer L. Hochschild, Katherine Levine Einstein, 2015-01-20. A democracy falters when most of its citizens are uninformed or misinformed when misinformation affects political decisions and actions or when political actors foment misinformation. The state of affairs the United States faces today as this timely book makes painfully clear. In Do Facts Matter, Jennifer L. Hochschild and Katherine Levine Einstein start with Thomas Jefferson's ideal citizen who knows and uses correct information to make policy or political choices. What then the authors ask are the consequences if citizens are informed but do not act on their knowledge. More serious, what if they do act but on incorrect information. Analyzing the use, nonuse and misuse of facts in various cases such as the call to impeach Bill Clinton, the response to global warming, Clarence Thomas's appointment to the Supreme Court, the case for invading Iraq, beliefs about Barack Obama's birthplace and religion and the Affordable Care Act, Hochschild and Einstein argue persuasively that errors of commission that is acting on falsehoods are even more troublesome than errors of omission. While citizens' inability or unwillingness to use the facts they know in their political decision making may be frustrating, their acquisition and use of incorrect knowledge pose a far greater threat to a democratic political system. Do Facts Matter looks beyond individual citizens to the role that political elites play in informing, misinforming and encouraging or discouraging the use of accurate or mistaken information or beliefs. Hochschild and Einstein show that if a well informed electorate remains a crucial component of a successful democracy, the deliberate concealment of political facts poses its greatest threat.
