Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three 30-minute sessions per week, including aerobic, strength, and flexibility exercises. The results showed that the program had a significant positive effect on the physical fitness of the women, with improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and flexibility. The program was well-tolerated and had no adverse effects on the women's health. The findings suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can be an effective means of improving physical fitness in sedentary, middle-aged women.
