

A wire whisk is positioned in the upper right corner of the frame. Below it, a white plate holds a golden-brown, textured food item, possibly a fried omelet or a stack of pancakes, which is dusted with a fine white powder, likely powdered sugar. The entire scene is set against a light grey, textured background.

Pop Islam Rosemary Pennington, 2024-04-02 In the West Islam and

Muslim life have been imagined as existing in an opposing state to popular culture a frozen faith unable to engage with the dynamic way popular culture shifts over time its followers reduced to tropes of terrorism and enemies of the state Pop Islam Seeing American Muslims in Popular Media traces narratives found in contemporary American comic books scripted and reality television fashion magazines comedy routines and movies to understand how they reveal nuanced Muslim identities to American audiences even as their accessibility obscures their diversity Rosemary Pennington argues that even as American Muslims have become more visible in popular media and created space for themselves in everything from magazines to prime time television to social media this move toward being seen can reinforce fixed ideas of what it means to be Muslim Pennington reveals how portrayals of Muslims in American popular media fall into a trap of visibility where moving beyond negative tropes can cause creators and audiences to unintentionally amplify those same stereotypes To truly understand where American narratives of who Muslims are come from we must engage with popular media while also considering who is allowed to be seen there and why
