Many Pathways To Literacy Many Pathways To Literacy:

Many Pathways to Literacy Eve Gregory, Susi Long, Dinah Volk, 2004-02-19 This unique and visionary text is a compilation of fascinating studies conducted in a variety of cross cultural settings where children learn language and literacy with siblings grandparents peers and community members Focusing on the knowledge and skills of children often invisible to educators these illuminating studies highlight how children skilfully draw from their varied cultural and linguistic worlds to make sense of new experiences The vastly experienced team of contributors provide powerful demonstrations of the generative activity of young children and their mediating partners family members peers and community members as they syncretise languages literacies and cultural practices from varied contexts Through studies grounded in home school community school nursery and church settings we see how children create for themselves radical forms of teaching and learning in ways that are not typically recognised understood or valued in schools This book will be invaluable reading for teachers teacher educators researchers and policy makers who seek to understand the many pathways to literacy and use that knowledge to affect real change in schools

Pathways to Literacy Trevor Cairney, 1995-11-02 This text recognizes that there is no simple way to develop literacy It begins with the central premise that literacy is not simply a cognitive process but a set of social practices used in socio cultural contexts and argues that literacy learners come to school with unique social histories that need to be recognised in the programmes devised to facilitate learning Cairney claims that literacy is not a unitary social practice and suggests that there are many forms of literacy each with specific purposes and contexts in which they are used The author provides a look at the many practical classroom strategies and practices that are necessary to recognize multiple pathways to literacy

Second Language Acquisition and the Younger Learner Jenefer Philp, Rhonda Oliver, Alison Mackey, 2008 This new volume of work highlights the distinctiveness of child SLA through a collection of different types of empirical research specific to younger learners Characteristics of children s cognitive emotional and social development distinguish their experiences from those of adult L2 learners creating intriguing issues for SLA research and also raising important practical questions regarding effective pedagogical techniques for learners of different ages While child SLA is often typically thought of as simple and often enjoyable and universally effortless in other words as child s play the complex portraits of young second language learners which emerge in the 16 papers collected in this book invite the reader to reconsider the reality for many younger learners Chapters by internationally renowned authors together with reports by emerging researchers describe second and foreign language learning by children ranging from pre schoolers to young adolescents in home and school contexts with caregivers peers and teachers as interlocutors

Phonics Maureen Lewis, Sue Ellis, 2006-09-12 Phonics Practice Research and Policy unravels the controversy surrounding phonics which currently characterises much of the discussion about reading standards and teaching reading Bringing some much needed balance to the debate the book offers genuinely focused advice on how to make sense of the various theories and on their applications in practice helping teachers to find the right practical solutions to suit the children in their settings The book includes chapters on How children learn to read and how phonics helps The role of early phonics teaching Classroom approaches to phonics teaching Involving parents and carers Speaking and phonological awareness Spelling links Staff development Responses to the Rose Review on Early Reading It will be essential reading for student teachers on initial training courses and for more experienced staff in a range of school settings

Languages and Literacies as Mobile and Placed Resources Sue Nichols, Collette Snowden, 2016-10-04 Languages and Literacies as Mobile and Placed Resources explores how languages and literacies are implicated in the complex relationship between place and mobility It is a book that represents the next wave in literacy studies in which theories of mobility networking and globalisation have emerged to account for the dynamic landscape of globally circulating communication resources Authors in this volume take up a more complex way of thinking about resources applying it to consider languages and literacies as assemblages or as parts of assemblages that are involved in learning teaching and meaning making The book addresses forms of text and mobility that arise in contexts outside of formal education including marketing charity journalism community organisation and parenting It also addresses school contexts and higher education settings Key topics explored include Consequences of workplace confinement Literacies as placed resources in the context of rural communities Literacy sustainability and landscapes for learning Documenting networked knowledge on tablets Mobilising literacy policy through resources Global Englishes as placed resources Languages as contextualised resources Shaping a digital academic writing resource in a transcultural space With an international range of carefully chosen contributors this book is a must read text for all academics interested in semiotics and literacy studies

In, Out and Beyond Antonio Medina-Rivera, Lee Wilberschied, 2011-05-25 The essays presented in this volume are a peer reviewed selection of some of the best papers presented during the 3rd Crossing Over Symposium at Cleveland State University from October 9-11, 2009. Scholars from the United States, Canada, Belgium, France, Spain, Italy, India, Israel, and the United Kingdom came together to examine border experiences from different points of view. Originally, the organizers called upon a diversity of borderland possibilities for this conference: cultural, political, educational, religious, international, intranational, linguistic, gender, ideological, age, tribal, social class, caste, identity, and neighborhoods. The definition of borderland was not limited to territorial spaces but rather was open to any kind of confrontation or encounter affecting different situations of our lives. The call for this conference was interdisciplinary in nature, and its intent was to open a discussion between the humanities and the social sciences on the dynamic issue of borders.

The Silent Experiences of Young Bilingual Learners Caroline Bligh, 2014-09-11. Many teachers are increasingly concerned with how to best support the learning of the rising numbers of bilingual learners in schools, particularly those children who are new to English and therefore cannot yet communicate with the teacher or their peers in their first language during the silent period. This book offers an alternative insight to that which is most commonly available to teachers and researchers: as instead of examining language acquisition purely from a linguistic approach, it explores the learning that is occurring through a sociocultural lens and even more significantly from the young child's perspective: the worm's eye view. Investigated through the experiences of young bilingual learners, the book allows the reader to make sense of the making of meaning that occurs when the child cannot make sense of his/her new world nor communicate verbally in the language of instruction in the classroom. Remarkably, learning through the silent period is revealed as both complex and messy as the bilingual child mediates his or her own learning through a synthesis of alternative learning pathways. The silent period is presented as a crucial time for learning, distributed through a synthesis of close observation, intense listening, and most significantly, copying the practices of others. Throughout the silent period, the children are not only seen to be learning but also contributing to the classroom practices. The book not only initiates new understandings of second language learning but also offers creative ideas on how to raise the achievement of children who are learning English as an additional language.

Linking Families, Learning, and Schooling Bobbie Kabuto, Prisca Martens, 2014-01-21. Parents who are also educational researchers have access to a domain that is highly complex and not always available to other scholars. In this book, parent researchers provide theoretical and practical insights into children's learning in the home and at school. Readers are given a window into learning in the home context and how all family members organize or engage in that learning. Working on two levels, the book develops scholarly discussions about learning in the home: how is it organized, who the participants are, and what children are learning, and it illustrates the impacts that outside institutions, in particular schools, have on families. It is unique in showcasing parent research as a type of research paradigm with particular aspects and challenges. Both teachers and researchers can learn from these studies as they show the impact that schooling has on families and how institutional discourses and beliefs can both positively and negatively affect the dynamics of any family.
