Reading Media Theory Brett Mills, David M. Reflection sections summarise each reading's key points and suggest further areas to explore and think about. 4 types of annotations help you engage with the reading context, content structure and writing style as well as questions to provoke further thought. Split into 4 sections: Reading theory, Key thinkers and schools, Approaches and Media Theory in context. New to the second edition: New chapters on New Media and Audiences as Producers. Reading Media Theory will assist you in developing close reading and analytic skills. It will also increase your ability to outline key theories and debates, assess different case studies, critically link theoretical approaches to a particular historical context and to structure and present an argument. Media Studies 2.0 William Merrin, 2014-03-21. Media Studies 2.0 offers an exploration of the digital revolution and its consequences for media and communication studies, arguing that the new era requires an upgraded discipline. Media studies 2.0: The book traces the history of mass media and computing, exploring their merger at the end of the twenty century and the material, ecological, cultural and personal elements of this digital transformation. It considers the history of media and communication studies, arguing that the academic discipline was a product of the analogue broadcast era emerging in the early twentieth century as a response to the success of newspapers, radio and cinema, and reflecting that era back in its organisation, themes and concepts. Digitalisation, however, takes us beyond this analogue era. Media studies 1.0 into a new post broadcast era. Merrin argues that the digital era demands an upgraded academic discipline, one reflecting the real media life of its students and teaching the key skills needed by the twenty first century user. Media 2.0 demand a media studies 2.0. This original and critical overview of contemporary developments within media studies is ideal for general students of media and communication as well as those specifically studying new and digital media.
