[pseud.]* Washington Irving,1910 To Know Her Own History Kelly Ritter,2012-02-20 To Know Her Own History chronicles the evolution of writing programs at a landmark Southern women s college during the postwar period Kelly Ritter finds that despite its conservative Southern culture and vocational roots the Woman s College of the University of

North Carolina was a unique setting where advanced writing programs and creativity flourished long before these trends emerged nationally Ritter profiles the history of the Woman s College first as a normal school where women trained as teachers with an emphasis on composition and analytical writing then as a liberal arts college She compares the burgeoning writing program here to those of the Seven Sisters Wellesley Smith Radcliffe Barnard Vassar Bryn Mawr and Mount Holyoke and to elite all male universities to show the singular progressivism of the Woman s College Ritter presents lively student writing samples from the early postwar period to reveal a blurring of the boundaries between creative and expository styles By midcentury a quantum shift toward creative writing changed administrators valuation of composition courses and staff at the Woman s College An intensive process of curricular revisions modeled after Harvard s Redbook plan was proposed and rejected in 1951 as the college stood by its unique curricula and singular values Ritter follows the plight of individual instructors of creative writing and composition showing how their compensation and standing were made disproportionate by the shifting position of expository writing in relation to creative writing Despite this unsettled period the Woman s College continued to gain in stature and by 1964 it became a prize acquisition of the University of North Carolina system Ritter s study demonstrates the value of local histories to uncover undocumented advancements in writing education offering insights into the political cultural and social conditions that influenced learning and methodologies at marginalized schools such as the Woman s College
