Ukrainian Nationalism in the Post-Stalin Era K.C. Farmer,2012-12-06 It is a truism that with only a few notable exceptions western scholars only belatedly turned their attention to the phenomenon of minority nationalism in the USSR In the last two decades however the topic has increasingly occupied the attention of specialists on the Soviet Union not only because its depths and implications have not yet been adequately plumbed but also because it is clearly a potentially explosive problem for the Soviet system itself The problem that minority nationalism poses is perceived rather differently at the top of Soviet society than at the bottom The elite views or at least rationalize the problem through the lens of Marxism Leninism which explains nationalist sentiment as a part of the super structure a temporary phenomenon that will disappear in the course of building communism That it has not done so is a primary source of concern for the Soviet leadership who do not seem to understand it and do not wish to accept its reality This is based on a fallacious conceptualization of ethnic nationalism as determined wholly by external or objective factors and therefore subject to corrective measures In terms of origins it is believed to be the result of past oppression and discrimination it is thus seen as a negative attitudinal set the essence of which lies in tangible rather than psychological factors Below the level of the leadership however ethnic nationalism reflects entrenched identifications and meanings which lend continuity and authenticity to human existence
