A Cricket field can range from 100-160 yards across and be any size or shape as long as it is hard and fairly flat.

Equipment:

Cricket Ball - Hard, cork and string ball, covered in leather. Joined in two hemispheres with the seam like the equator and the stitching is raised on the seam. The ball is traditionally dyed red, with the stitching white.

Cricket Bat - Made of willow and the blade is flat on one side. It is humped on the other side for strength. The bat can only be a maximum of 38 inches long.

Wickets - There are 2 wickets - wooden structures made up of 3 stumps topped by a pair of bails.

Stumps - 3 wooden posts 1 inch wide by 32 inches high.

Bails - 2 wooden crosspieces that sit in grooves atop the stumps.

The Games:

Cricket is a team sport for 2 teams of 11 players each. A formal game of cricket can last anything from an afternoon to several days. Although the game play and rules are very different, the basic concept is similar to that of baseball.

Teams bat in successive innings and attempt to score runs, while the opposing team fields and attempts to bring an end to the batting team's innings. After each team has batted the same number of innings the team with the most runs wins.

Play begins when the bowler (like a pitcher) bowls a ball to the batsman. It must be bowled over arm and the arm must be straight. The difference between bowling and throwing is that the elbow is cocked when you throw. A bowler generates the energy from the shoulder and wrist joints (a pitcher generates their energy from the elbow, shoulder and wrist joints).

A batsman can either hit the ball on the full (the fly) or off a bounce. Most bowlers bounce the ball to a batsman because it is much harder to hit that way. Six balls (6 pitches), constitutes an over. Once a bowler has "bowled" six balls, a different member of the fielding team must then bowl. No bowler may deliver 2 consecutive overs. Once a bowler begins an over they must complete it.

Batsman must carry their bats the entire time. Both batsmen need a bat. They don't drop them like in baseball.

Only one player is allowed to wear a glove (and they wear two) and that is the wicket keeper. They are like a catcher in baseball. They stand opposite the bowler in the popping crease behind the wicket.
