Liverpool Porcelain of the Eighteenth Century and Its Makers Knowles Boney, 1957 Liverpool Porcelain of the Eighteenth Century and Its Makers Knowles Boney, 1957 The Art of Worcester Porcelain, 1751-1788 Aileen Dawson, 2009 Originally published in 2007 by the British Museum Press London 18th and 19th Century Porcelain Analysis Howell G. M. Edwards, 2020-07-13 This book addresses the contributions made by analytical chemistry to the characterisation of 18th and early 19th Century English and Welsh porcelains commencing with the earliest reports of Sir Arthur Church and of Herbert Eccles and Bernard Rackham using chemical digestion techniques and concluding with the most recent instrumental experiments which together span more than a hundred years of study From the earliest experiments which required necessarily the sacrifice of significant portions of each specimen which may already have been damaged to the latest experiments which needed only microsampling or the non destructive interrogation of valuable perfect specimens a comprehensive survey is undertaken of more than twenty manufactories of quality porcelains The correlation is made between the quantitative elemental oxide determinations of the scanning electron microscopic diffraction and X-ray fluorescence data and the qualitative molecular spectroscopic Raman data to demonstrate their complementarity and use in the holistic forensic assessment of the origin of the fired porcelains this will form the groundwork for the adoption of analytical techniques for the attribution of unknown or questionable porcelains to their potential source factories The book will also examine the perception of what constitutes a porcelain and its definitions and examines the assignment of porcelains to types which currently employs the definitions of hard paste soft paste hybrid magnesian and bone china from the conclusions derived from the analytical data and a consideration of the raw materials employed in their manufacturing processes During the discussion of this analytical evidence several themes and protocols have been established for its utilisation in the potential identification of porcelains and several case studies undertaken for this purpose are cited The book will be of interest to analytical scientists to museum ceramics curators and to ceramics historians Liverpool Porcelain of the 18th Century and Its Makers , 1957 The first industrial region Jon Stobart, 2013-07-19 Britain's industrial revolution is popularly seen as a watershed in the transition to a modern industrial society This book involves five closely related objectives The first is to explore the importance of early eighteenth century processes of regional formation and spatial integration and set these alongside later developments in regionalisation established by Hudson and others The second objective is to offer an integrated analysis that seeks to link the detailed empirical evidence of local and regional development with broader theoretical historical and geographical concepts and debates Third is the integration of social and spatial divisions of labour was central to regional formation and economic development during this period The fourth objective is to explore thoroughly the relationship between specialisation and integration in a variety of key sectors and in the regional economy as a whole The final objective is to provide a rounded picture of development in north west England where industrial trading servicing and commercial leisure activities are treated as part of an holistic regional economy With a range of theoretical perspectives on regional economic development the book focuses on textile industries as an example of advanced organic and proto industrial development The differentiated nature of Britain s industrial regions is reflected in the development of an increasingly sophisticated mineral based energy economy parallel to this organic textiles economy The service industries and interstitial secondary centres are discussed Specialisation and integration were mutually formative processes that shaped regional development in the early eighteenth century and throughout the industrial revolution
