Yonette F. Thomas, Douglas Richardson, Ivan Cheung, 2008-09-24 Making Connections Geography and Drug Addiction Geography involves making connections connections in our world among people and places cultures human activities and natural processes It involves understanding the relationships and connections between seemingly disparate or unrelated ideas and between what is and what might be Geography also involves connecting with people When I first encountered an extraordinarily vibrant intelligent and socially engaged scientist at a private dinner several years ago I was immediately captivated by the intensity of her passion to understand how and why people become addicted to drugs and what could be done to treat or prevent drug addiction Fortunately she was willing to think beyond the bounds of her own discipline in her search for answers Our conversation that evening which began with her research on fundamental biochemical processes of drug addiction in the human body evolved inevitably to an exploration of the ways in which research on the geographical context of drug addiction might contribute to the better understanding of etiology of addiction its diffusion its interaction with geographically variable environmental social and economic factors and the strategies for its treatment and prevention This fascinating woman I soon learned was Nora Volkow the Director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse as well as the granddaughter of Leon Trotsky

The Civilian Lives of U.S. Veterans Louis Hicks, Eugenia L. Weiss, Jose E. Coll, 2016-12-05 In this book 50 experts study the lives of U S veterans at work at home and in American society as they navigate issues regarding health gender public service substance abuse and homelessness The aftermath of modern war includes a population of veterans whose needs last for many decades far longer than the war itself This in depth study looks at life after the military considering the dual conundrum of a population benefiting from the perks of their duty yet continuing to deal with trauma resulting from their service and of former servicemen and servicewomen trying to fit into civilian life in a system designed to keep them separate Through two comprehensive volumes essays shed light on more than 30 topics involving or affecting former servicemen and servicewomen offering a blueprint for the formal study of U S veterans in the future Contributions from dozens of experts in the field of military science cover such issues as unemployment homelessness disability access to higher education health media portrayal criminal justice substance abuse guns suicide and politics Through information gleaned from surveys interviews participant observations secondary analyses and content analyses the chapters reveal how veterans are able to successfully contribute to civilian life and show how the American workforce can benefit from their unique set of skills

Late-Life Depression
Steven P. Roose,Harold A. Sackeim,2004-07-15 We live in an aging world Illnesses that are prevalent and cause significant morbidity and mortality in older people will consume an increasing share of health care resources One such illness is depression This illness has a particularly devastating impact in the elderly because it is often undiagnosed or inadequately treated Depression not only has a profound impact on quality of life but it is associated with an increased risk of mortality from suicide and vascular disease In fact for every medical illness studied e g heart disease diabetes cancer individuals who are depressed have a worse prognosis Research has illuminated the physiological and behavioral effects of depression that accounts for these poor outcomes The deleterious relationship between depression and other illnesses has changed the concept of late life depression from a psychiatric disorder that is diagnosed and treated by a psychiatrist to a common and serious disorder that is the responsibility of all physicians who care for patients over the age of 60 This is the first volume devoted to the epidemiology phenomenology psychobiology treatment and consequences of late life depression Although much has been written about depressive disorders the focus has been primarily on the illness as experienced in younger adults The effects of aging on the brain the physiological and behavioral consequences of recurrent depression and the impact of other diseases common in the elderly make late life depression a distinct entity There is a compelling need for a separate research program specialized treatments and a book dedicated to this disorder This book will be invaluable to psychiatrists gerontologists clinical psychologists social workers students trainees and others who care for individuals over the age of sixty Late-Life Psychopathology W. Quin Yow,Mithat Durak,Selin Karakose,2023-09-08 The research topic of Late Life Psychopathology is about how various kinds of psychopathology manifest themselves in later life The collection will include a broad spectrum of behavioral cognitive and emotional issues in older individuals including mood disorders anxiety disorders psychotic disorders sexual disorders insomnia and personality disorders Along with the psychopathological disorders in older adults this research topic will be focused on the psychopathological similarities and differences across the various age groups

Changing Addiction Problems and Care Responses During and After a Major Crisis: Emergence of a 'New Normal' John Strang ,Julia Rozanova,Alexandra A. Deac ,Harry Skipper,2024-07-24 Despite its lifesaving role addiction treatment and care are often among the first domains to lose resources when a crisis strikes Across the world disruptions in addiction related care during the Covid 19 pandemic armed conflict or radical political change have been documented But what happens after the crisis is typically unknown How do addiction related problems change during a crisis and what are the responses at individual and societal level How do crises affect causes prevalence incidence or severity of addiction in different regions and populations Does the addiction care system permanently collapse or is the breakdown temporary and reversible How does a crisis evolve and what happens to addiction care services and their beneficiaries over time Is residual damage to addiction care services inevitable or can a crisis create opportunities for positive change at individual organizational and or system level Are harms and benefits un equally distributed among different addiction stakeholder groups And finally what does a new normal look like in addiction and addiction care and what new norms underpin it These questions not only encompass the importance of such a topic but also the implications on public health that are applicable worldwide that need to be addressed
