

CATCHING UP

Hi Gavin,

I assume you remain in contact with Zoran, which means that you won't be surprised to learn that I am still in Australia. I'm gradually narrowing down the likely possibilities for my future, having eliminated various harebrained ideas ranging from "covert operations agent" to landscape gardener. Unfortunately, my romantic vision doesn't rank "waiter" very highly on the scale, but I believe I'll settle for that role for now, or at least until NASA calls me with a better offer.

I'm living (and I use the term in its fullest sense) in a little fishing town called Lynch's Inlet. Work in Adelaide dried up towards the end of last year, so I thought I'd relocate and try my luck up here in Queensland. It's worked out well because I've also been able to spend time with my farmin' folks. I applied for some casual work at a newly opened restaurant to earn a bit of money. I enjoy the work so much that I am enthused enough to continue there for a while longer. I work four days a week, and spend my day off each week fishing or farming with Mum and Dad, who frequently need to fix fences, chase cows around and unbog heavy machinery out of the dam.

I'm living in a townhouse that has an octagonal balcony that provides 180-degree ocean views. I'm on the highest block in town, which is about 200 metres from the beach - much to everyone's envy. So, realising it is the perfect setting for an aspiring writer, I am playing the role and imagining my name appearing one day in print for reasons other than criminal.

Well, I have demanded enough time from you already (if you're still there, that is) and imagine that you are well and busy. Please set me straight sometime.

Rafael
