

Seth explores the woods against his grandfather's wishes. He happens upon a shack with a grizzled old woman living inside. She is preoccupied with a rope bearing two large knots, but she still tries to lure Seth inside. Spooked, Seth flees the woods. Back in the yard, Seth tells Kendra about the woman in the woods.

Kendra gets to know Livia, the housekeeper. Seth convinces Kendra to follow him into the woods, and he shows her a lush park with a pond and an island in the center that has been hidden away. The two are amazed, but when they return, Grandpa Sorenson tells them that he knows they were in the woods. He admits that the woods are dangerous because the forest-dangerous/endangered creatures on his property, and Kendra and Seth argue him down to a lesser punishment because he wasn't completely honest with them.

While confined in their room as punishment the next day, Kendra completes Grandpa Sorenson's puzzle with the keys, finding a blank notebook with the phrase "drink the milk" hidden on one page. She gets Seth to try the milk while she dozes off, and when he reveals that it allows him to see fairies in the yard instead of birds, she drinks some as well. When Grandpa Sorenson finds out, he tells them about Fableweaver, the explains that now that they can see the magical creatures, they'll need to be careful not to interfere with any of them, doing so would upon the children's magical inheritance.

Kendra discovers that Livia was a fairy who left her pond after falling in love with a mortal man, Madeline, a traveling fairy salesman, visits Fableweaver a visit. From him, the children learn about the Society of the Evening Star, an evil organization that seeks to overthrow preserves to strengthen their dark magic. The next day, Seth successfully traps a fairy in a jar, unbeknownst to anyone else. He moves her in a dresser drawer, despite her terrified protests.

In the morning, Seth discovers that the fairy has transformed into an evil imp. As he attempts to change her back, he ends up accidentally freeing her. Later, Seth is attacked by fairies who shoot spells at him until he becomes a hideous chimerical beast. Grandpa Sorenson has no choice but to take him to the woman in the woods, who is a witch named Maribel who has been imprisoned by her knots as punishment for meddling with dark magic. Grandpa Sorenson loosens one of her knots to get her to revert Seth to his human form. This leaves her with only one knot left.
