Iles,2018-08-15 Little Masterpieces of Science Invention and Discovery Large Print George Iles PREFACE To a good many of us the inventor is the true hero for he multiplies the working value of life He performs an old task with new economy as when he devises a mowing machine to oust the scythe or he creates a service wholly new as when he bids a landscape depict itself on a photographic plate He and his twin brother the discoverer have eyes to read a lesson that Nature has held for ages under the undiscerning gaze of other men Where an ordinary observer sees or thinks he sees diversity a Franklin detects identity as in the famous experiment here recounted which proves lightning to be one and the same with a charge of the Leyden jar Of a later day than Franklin advantaged therefor by new knowledge and better opportunities for experiment stood Faraday the founder of modern electric art His work gave the world the dynamo and motor the transmission of giant powers almost without toll for two hundred miles at a bound It is however in the carriage of but trifling quantities of motion just enough for signals that electricity thus far has done its most telling work Among the men who have created the electric telegraph Joseph Henry has a commanding place A short account of what he did told in his own words is here presented Then follows a narrative of the difficult task of laying the first Atlantic cables a task long scouted as impossible it is a story which proves how much science may be indebted to unfaltering courage to faith in ultimate triumph We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience
