Living Downstream An Ecologists Personal Investigation Of Cancer And The Environment:

Living Downstream Sandra Steingraber, 2010-03-23 Sandra Steingraber biologist poet and survivor of cancer in her twenties brings all three perspectives to bear on the most important health and human rights issue of our time the growing body of evidence linking cancer to environmental contaminations Her scrupulously researched scientific analysis ranges from the alarming worldwide patterns of cancer incidence to the sabotage wrought by cancer promoting substances on the intricate workings of human cells In a gripping personal narrative she travels from hospital waiting rooms to hazardous waste sites and from farmhouse kitchens to incinerator hearings bringing to life stories of communities in her hometown and around the country as they confront decades of industrial and agricultural recklessness Living Downstream is the first book to bring together toxics release data now finally made available through under the right to know laws and newly released cancer registry data Sandra Steingraber is also the first to trace with such compelling precision the entire web of connections between our bodies and the ecological world in which we eat drink breathe and work Her book strikes a hopeful note throughout for while we can do little to alter our genetic inheritance we can do a great deal to eliminate the environmental contributions to cancer and she shows us where to begin Living Downstream is for all readers who care about the health of their families and future generations Sandra Steingraber's brave clear and careful voice is certain to break the paralyzing silence on this subject that persists more than three decades after Rachel Carson's great early warning

Risk and Adaptation in a Cancer Cluster Town Laura Hart, 2023-06-16 Risk and Adaptation in a Cancer Cluster Town examines the role of emotion and its relationship to community experiences of social belonging and inequality Using a cancer cluster community in Northwest Ohio as a case study Laura Hart advances an approach to risk that grapples with the complexities of community belonging in the wake of suspected industrial pollution Her research points to a fear driven not only by economic anxiety but also by a fear of losing security within the community a sort of pride that is not only about status but connectedness Hart reveals the importance of this social form of risk the desire for belonging and the risk of not belonging ultimately arguing that this is consequential to how people make judgements and respond to issues Within this context affected families experience psychosocial and practical conflicts as they adapt to cancer as a way of life Hart ultimately presents possibilities for the democratization of risk management and underscores the need for transformative approaches to environmental justice

The Temporalities of Waste

Fiona Allon, Ruth Barcan, Karma Eddison-Cogan, 2020-10-29 This book investigates the complex and unpredictable temporalities of waste Reflecting on waste in the context of sustainability materiality social practices subjectivity and environmental challenges the book covers a wide range of settings from the municipal garbage crisis in Beirut to food rescue campaigns in Hong Kong and the toxic by products of computer chip production in Silicon Valley Waste is one of the most pressing issues of the day central to environmental challenges and the development of healthier and more sustainable futures The emergence of the new field of discard studies in addition to expanding research across other disciplines within the social sciences is testament to the centrality of waste as a crucial social material and cultural problem and to the need for multi and transdisciplinary approaches like those provided in this volume This edited collection seeks to develop a framework that understands the material properties of different kinds of waste not as fixed stable or singular but as dynamic relational and often invisible It brings together new and cutting edge research on the temporalities of waste by a diverse range of international authors Collectively this research presents a persuasive argument about the need to give more credence to the capacities of waste to provoke us in materially and temporally complex ways especially those substances that complicate our understandings of life as bounded duration This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of the environmental humanities cultural studies anthropology and human geography Wastelanding Traci Brynne Voyles, 2015-05-15

Wastelanding tells the history of the uranium industry on Navajo land in the U S Southwest asking why certain landscapes and the peoples who inhabit them come to be targeted for disproportionate exposure to environmental harm Uranium mines and mills on the Navajo Nation land have long supplied U S nuclear weapons and energy programs By 1942 mines on the reservation were the main source of uranium for the top secret Manhattan Project Today the Navajo Nation is home to more than a thousand abandoned uranium sites Radiation related diseases are endemic claiming the health and lives of former miners and nonminers alike Traci Brynne Voyles argues that the presence of uranium mining on Din Navajo land constitutes a clear case of environmental racism Looking at discursive constructions of landscapes she explores how environmental racism develops over time For Voyles the wasteland where toxic materials are excavated exploited and dumped is both a racial and a spatial signifier that renders an environment and the bodies that inhabit it pollutable Because environmental inequality is inherent in the way industrialism operates the wasteland is the other through which modern industrialism is established In examining the history of wastelanding in Navajo country Voyles provides an environmental justice history of uranium mining revealing how just as civilization has been defined on and through savagery environmental privilege is produced by portraying other landscapes as marginal worthless and pollutable Energy Islands Catalina M de

Onís, 2021-06-22 Weaving together historical and ethnographic research Catalina M de On is challenges the master narratives of Puerto Rico as a tourist destination and site of natural disasters She demonstrates how fossil fuel economies are inextricably entwined with colonial practices and policies and how local community groups in Puerto Rico have struggled against energy coloniality and energy privilege to mobilize and transform power from the ground up This work decenters continental contexts and deconstructs damaging hierarchies that devalue and exploit disenfranchised rural coastal communities
