The Sustainable City IX N. Marchettini,C.A. Brebbia,R. Pulselli,S. Bastianoni,2014-09-23 Containing the proceedings of the 9th International Conference on Urban Regeneration and Sustainability this book addresses the multi disciplinary aspects of urban planning a result of the increasing size of cities the amount of resources and services required and the complexity of modern society Most of earth s population now lives in cities and the process of urbanisation still continues generating many problems deriving from the drift of the population towards them These problems can be resolved by cities becoming efficient habitats saving resources in a way that improves the quality and standard of living The process however faces a number of major challenges related to reducing pollution improving main transportation and infrastructure systems New urban solutions are required to optimise the use of space and energy resources leading to improvements in the environment i e reduction in air water and soil pollution as well as efficient ways to deal with waste generation These challenges contribute to the development of social and economic imbalances and require the development of new solutions Large cities are probably the most complex mechanisms to manage However despite such complexity they represent a fertile ground for architects engineers city planners social and political scientists and other professionals able to conceive new ideas and time them according to technological advances and human requirements The challenge of planning sustainable cities lies in considering their dynamics the exchange of energy and matter and the function and maintenance of ordered structures directly or indirectly supplied and maintained by natural systems Topics covered include Urban strategies Planning development and management Urban conservation and regeneration The community and the city Eco town planning Landscape planning and design Environmental management Sustainable energy and the city Transportation Quality of life Waterfront development Case studies Architectural issues Cultural heritage issues Intelligent environment and emerging technologies Planning for risk Disaster and emergency response Safety and security Waste management Infrastructure and society Urban metabolism

Concepts and Values in Biodiversity Dirk Lanzerath, Minou Friele, 2014-01-23 Biodiversity may refer to the diversity of genes species or ecosystems in general These varying concepts of biodiversity occasionally lead to conflicts among researchers and policy makers as each of them require a customized type of protection strategy This book addresses the questions surrounding the merits of conserving an existing situation evolutionary development or the intentional substitution of one genome species or ecosystem for another Any practical steps towards the protection of biodiversity demand a definition of that which is to be protected and in turn the motivations for protecting biodiversity Is biodiversity a necessary model which is also useful or does it carry intrinsic value Debates like this are particularly complex when interested parties address it from different conceptual and moral perspectives Comprised of three parts each complemented by a short introductory paragraph this collection presents a variety of approaches to this challenge The chapters cover the perspectives of environmental scientists with expertise in evolutionary environmental biology systematic zoology and botany as well as those of researchers with expertise in philosophy ethics politics law and economics This combination facilitates a truly interdisciplinary debate by highlighting hitherto unacknowledged implications that inform current academic and political debates on biodiversity and its protection The book should be of interest to students and researchers of environment studies biodiversity environmental philosophy ethics and management
