

An Analysis of the Story Graduation by Maya Angelou

Anticipation

Imagine how it would feel to have someone of another race speak at your graduation and put your race down. This is the story of "Graduation" written by Maya Angelou. In this story we see how a young black girl awaits with great pride and anticipation her graduation day. When the day finally arrives, her dreams and expectations are shadowed by the speech that Mr. Donleavy, a white man, gave to the graduating class of 1940. At the end of the story we see how the class valedictorian, Henry Reed comes back with encouraging words that help the entire audience become alive and feel like they were on top again. Maya Angelou used a very important literary element in this story called tone.

Tone is the attitude the speaker has towards themselves, their subjects, and their audience. In this case the speaker in this story is the young black girl. In the beginning of the story the black girl speaks with pride and self-confidence. She thinks very highly of herself when she states, "...I was going to be lovely. A walking model of all the various styles of fine hand sewing and it didn't worry me that I was only twelve years old and merely graduating from the eighth grade..." The joy in her voice is felt when she stated "...my work alone had awarded me to a top place and I was going to be one of the first called in the graduating ceremonies. No absences, nor tardiness, and my academic work was among the best of the year..." Unfortunately pride and joy were not the only tone used by the speaker.

In the middle of the story we see the girl angry and disappointed at the outcome of her graduation. As I described in the introduction, Mr. Donleavy addressed her graduating class with continuous remarks about the white class. He went on to say that "...the white kids were going to have a chance to become Galileo's and Madame Curies and Edison's and Gauguins ..." The young girl couldn't believe what she was hearing. "Graduation, hush-hush magic time of frills and gifts and congratulations and diploma, was finished for me before my name was called. The accomplishments was nothing. Donleavy had exposed us ..." In this sentence we can actually feel the frustration and anger she felt. At the end of the story we see how her mood changed from being angry to feeling proud of herself and her race once again.

This was the outcome of a poem read by her class valedictorian, Henry Reed. "The word of Patrick Henry had made such an impression on me that I had been able to stretch myself tall and trembling and, I know not what course others may take but as for me, give me liberty or give me death ..." In this sentence the young girl feels proud to be black and to be part of the graduating class of 1940. She put aside all the awful remarks made by Mr. Donleavy and rejoiced with the encouraging words given by Henry Reed. She was proud of her race and proud to be graduating due to her fu examine the character of young Maya noting how her rootlessness contributes to her perseverance and adaptability as well as how Angelou's narrative technique allows her to recount the details of incredible life without being controlled by them. The book's treatment of sexual abuse is also investigated in the larger context of other black women's narratives of sexual abuse. Other critics attend to Caged Bird's place in the genre of ethnic autobiography and the particular challenges it presents to teachers seeking to expose students multicultural literature, the childhood roots of Angelou's political activism, the influence of blues music on the narrative's structure, and the young Maya's relationships with the black community literature and the women in her life.

Maya Angelou's Life In a Fly Edgar Wollstone, Maya Angelou aka Marguerite Johnson was a civil activist award winning author and a legendary poet. Her fame still shines on her memoir I Know Why The Caged Bird Sings. Angelou is considered the voice of black community. Her words echoed the sufferings and roared for their suppressed silence. She was honored with numerous awards, is still praised for her touching works, and a voice which overcame her struggles life had thrown at her. Her works are the portrayal of her own personal experiences. She gave life to her works by her raw approach of writing. There was a longing for freedom and a penetrating voice for her own race. Her life was a series of overwhelming incidents that even suppressed her voice for a long period. The iconic lady who became a mother during her teenage has bestowed some life changing works the English Literature has witnessed. This book throws light on the inspiring life journey of this prolific writer and iconic personality.

A New Juvenile Justice System Nancy E. Dowd, 2015-05-15. A New Juvenile Justice System aims at nothing less than a complete reform of the existing system, not minor change or even significant overhaul, but the replacement of the existing system with a different vision. The authors in this volume, academics, activists, researchers, and those who serve in the existing system, all respond in this collection to the question of what the system should be. Uniformly, they agree that an ideal system should be centered around the principle of child well being and the goal of helping kids to achieve productive lives as citizens and members of their communities. Rather than the existing system with its punitive, destructive, undermining effect and uneven application by race and gender, these authors envision a system responsive to the needs of youth as well as to the community's legitimate need for public safety. How, they ask, can the ideals of equality, freedom, liberty, and self-determination transform the system? How can we improve the odds that children who have been labeled as delinquent can make successful transitions to adulthood? And how can we create a system that relies on proven, family-focused interventions and creates opportunities for positive youth development? Drawing upon interdisciplinary work as well as on the ground programs and experience, the authors sketch out the broad parameters of such a system. Providing the principles, goals, and concrete means to achieve them, this volume imagines using our resources wisely and well to invest in all children and their potential to contribute and thrive in our society.
