Beyond Bodies Todd Sanders, 2008-12-15 For over a century the Ihanzu of north central Tanzania have conducted rainmaking rites As with similar rites found across sub-Saharan Africa these rites are replete with gender sexual and fertility motifs Social scientists have typically explained such things as symbolizing human bodies and the act of procreation But what happens when our interlocutors deny such symbolic explanations when they insist that rain rites and the gender and sexual motifs in them do not symbolize anything but rather aim simply to bring rain Beyond Bodies examines Ihanzu sensibilities about gender through a fine grained ethnography of rainmaking rites It considers the meaning of ritual practices in a society in which gender is not as bound to the body as it is in the Euro American imagination Engaging with recent anthropological and gender theory this book crucially calls into question how social scientists have explained gender symbolism in myriad ethnographic and historical studies across Africa

Ageing selves and everyday life in the north of England Cathrine Degnen, 2018-02-28 Seeking to explore what it means to grow older in contemporary Britain from the perspective of older people themselves this richly detailed ethnographic study engages in debates over selfhood and people's relationships with time Based on research conducted in a former coal mining village in South Yorkshire England Cathrine Degnen explores how the category of old age comes to be assigned and experienced in everyday life through multiple registers of interaction including that of social memory in a postindustrial context of great social transformation Challenging both the notion of a homogenous relationship with time across generations and the idea of a universalised middle aged self Degnen argues that the complex interplay of social cultural and physical attributes of ageing means that older people can come to have a different position in relation to time and to the self than younger people unseating normative conventions about narrative and temporality

Perspectives on Public Policy in Societal-Environmental Crises Adam Izdebski, John Haldon, Piotr Filipkowski, 2022-07-14 This is an open access book Histories we tell never emerge in a vacuum and history as an academic discipline that studies the past is highly sensitive to the concerns of the present and the heated debates that can divide entire societies But does the study of the past also have something to teach us about the future Can history help us in coping with the planetary crisis we are now facing By analyzing historical societies as complex adaptive systems we contribute to contemporary thinking about societal environmental interactions in policy and planning and consider how environmental and climatic changes whether sudden high impact events or more subtle gradual changes impacted human responses in the past We ask how societal perceptions of such changes affect behavioral patterns and explanatory rationalities in premodernity and whether a better historical understanding of these relationships can inform our response to contemporary problems of similar nature and magnitude such as adapting to climate change

Along an African Border Sonia Silva, Sónia Silva, 2011-06-01 The divination baskets of south Central Africa are woven for a specific purpose The baskets known as lipele contain sixty or so small articles from seeds claws and minuscule horns to wooden carvings Each article has its own name and symbolic meaning and collectively they are known as jipelo For the Luvala and related peoples the lipele is more than a container of souvenirs it is a tool a source of crucial information from the ancestral past and advice for the future In Along an African Border anthropologist Sonia Silva examines how Angolan refugees living in Zambia use these divination baskets to cope with daily life in a new land

Silva documents the special processes involved in weaving the baskets and transforming them into oracles. She speaks with diviners who make their living interpreting lipele messages and speaks also with their knowledge seeking clients. To the Luvale these baskets are capable of thinking, hearing, judging and responding. They communicate by means of jipelo articles drawn in configurations, interact with persons and other objects, punish wrongdoers, assist people in need and much like humans go through a life course that is marked with an initiation ceremony and a special burial. The lipele functions in a state between object and person. Notably absent from lipele divination is any discussion or representation in the form of symbolic objects of the violence in Angola or the Luvale's relocation struggles. Instead, the consultation focuses on age-old personal issues of illness, reproduction and death. As Silva demonstrates in this sophisticated and richly illustrated ethnography, lipele help people maintain their links to kin and tradition in a world of transience and uncertainty. Living the End of Empire Jan-Bart Gewald, Marja Hinfelaar, Giacomo Macola, 2011-08-25. Building on the foundational work of the Rhodes Livingstone Institute, the essays contained in Living the End of Empire offer a more nuanced and complex picture of the late colonial period in Zambia than has hitherto been presented in nationalist histories. Living the End of Empire Jan-Bart Gewald, Marja Hinfelaar, Giacomo Macola, 2011-08-12. Building on the foundational work of the Rhodes Livingstone Institute, the essays contained in Living the End of Empire offer a nuanced and complex picture of the late colonial period in Zambia. The present volume, based on untapped archival material and sources that have emerged in recent years, throws new light on some of the historical trajectories that the teleological gaze of nationalist scholars tended to ignore or belittle. By bringing to view the deep-rooted tensions underlying the Zambian nationalist movement, the painful dilemmas faced by chiefly and religious institutions, and the contradictory experiences of European and Asian minorities, Living the End of Empire draws inspiration from and contributes to a growing literature that is concerned with the study of social, political and cultural forces that did not readily fit into the then dominant narratives of united anti-colonial struggles. A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa Roy Richard Grinker, Stephen C. Lubkemann, Christopher B. Steiner, Euclides Gonçalves, 2019-02-06. An essential collection of scholarly essays on the anthropology of Africa, offering a thorough introduction to the most important topics in this evolving and diverse field of study. The study of the cultures of Africa has been central to the methodological and theoretical development of anthropology as a discipline since the late 19th century. As the anthropology of Africa has emerged as a distinct field of study, anthropologists working in this tradition have strived to build a disciplinary conversation that recognizes the diversity and complexity of modern and ancient African cultures while acknowledging the effects of historical anthropology on the present and future of the field of study. A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa is a collection of insightful essays covering the key questions and subjects in the contemporary anthropology of Africa, with a key focus on addressing the topics that define the contemporary discipline. Written and edited by a team of leading cultural anthropologists, it is an ideal introduction to the most important topics in the field, both those that have consistently been a part of the critical dialogue and those that have emerged as the central questions of the discipline's future. Beginning with essays on the enduring topics in the study of African cultures, A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa provides a foundation in the contemporary critical approach to subjects of longstanding interest. With these subjects as a groundwork, later essays address decolonization, the postcolonial experience, and questions of modern identity and definition, providing representation of the diverse thinking and scholarship in the modern anthropology of Africa.
