Lullabies for Little Criminals Heather O'Neill, 2016-04-05 A beautiful book There are phrases in here that will make you laugh out loud and others that will stop your heart A definite triumph David Rakoff author of Love Dishonor Marry Die Cherish Perish From Heather O'Neill the Giller shortlisted author of Daydreams of Angels and The Girl Who Was Saturday Night a heartbreaking and wholly original novel about a young girl fighting to preserve a bruised innocence on the feral streets of a big city Baby all of thirteen years old is lost in the gangly coltish moment between childhood and the strange pulls and temptations of the adult world Her mother is dead her father Jules is always on the lookout for his next score Baby knows that chocolate milk is Jules slang for heroin and sees a lot more of that in her house than the real article But she takes vivid delight in the scrappy bits of happiness and beauty that find their way to her and moves through the threat of the streets as if she's been choreographed in a dance Soon though a hazard emerges that is bigger than even her hard won survival skills can handle Alphonse the local pimp has his eye on her for his new girl he wants her body and soul and what the johns don't take he covets for himself At the same time a tender and naively passionate friendship unfolds with a boy from her class at school who has no notion of the dark claims on her which even her father lost on the nod cannot totally ignore Jules consigns her to a stint in juvie hall and for the moment this perceived betrayal preserves Baby from terrible harm but after that her salvation has to be her own invention Channeling the artlessly affecting voice of her thirteen year old heroine with extraordinary accuracy and power O'Neill's dazzles with a novel of extraordinary prescience and power a subtly understated yet searingly effective story of a young life on the streets and the strength wits and luck necessary for survival connections the authors draw between substance use and poverty colonialism and gender based violence With particular interest in the pervasive myth of the Drunken Indian Fabre asserts that these novels reimagine addiction as social suffering rather than individual pathology or moral failure Fabre builds on the growing body of humanities research that brings literature into active engagement with other fields of study including biomedical and cognitive behavioural models of addiction medical and health policies of harm reduction and the practices of Alcoholics Anonymous The book further engages with critical pedagogical strategies to teach critical awareness of stereotypes of addiction and to encourage the potential of literary analysis as a form of social activism

A Frontline Worker's Manifesto Daniel Oudshoorn, 2025-03-28 When journeying alongside those who are forcibly deprived of housing and shelter it is rare to find a frontline worker who has been in their position for more than a few years There is so much exploitation trauma and moral injury in this sector that the average rate of burn out is two years Thanks to the good company around me I have been able to sustain myself in this work for more than twenty five years Along the way I have paid special attention to those who are most excluded abandoned and oppressed by the very systems that claim to care for them I have critically and collaboratively reflected on my praxis over these years and in this book I draw together much of what I have learned so that others can start further ahead than I started

David R. Jarraway, 2013-05-25 Over the past forty years Canadian literature has found its way to the silver screen with increasing regularity Beginning with the adaptation of Margaret Laurence s A Jest of God to the Hollywood film Rachel Rachel in 1966 Canadian writing would appear to have found a doubly successful life for itself at the movies from the critically acclaimed Kamouraska and The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz in the 1970s through to the award winning Love and Human Remains and The English Patient in the 1990s With the more recent notoriety surrounding the Oscar nominated Away from Her and the screen appearances of The Stone Angel and Fugitive Pieces this seems like an appropriate time for a collection of essays to reflect on the intersection between literary publication in Canada and its various screen transformations This volume discusses and debates several double edged issues the extent to which the literary artefact extends its artfulness to the film artefact the degree to which literary communities stand to gain or lose in contact with film communities and perhaps most of all the measure by which a viable relation between fiction and film can be said to exist in Canada and where that double life precisely manifests itself if at all This book is published in English
