Green Intelligence Creating Environments That Protect Human Health:

Green Intelligence John Wargo, 2009-09-29 We live in a world awash in manmade chemicals from the pesticides on our front lawns to the diesel exhaust in the air we breathe Although experts are beginning to understand the potential dangers of these substances there are still more than 80 000 synthetic compounds that have not been sufficiently tested to interpret their effects on human health Yale University professor John Wargo has spent much of his career researching the impact of chemical exposures on women and children In this book he explains the origins of society s profound misunderstanding of everyday chemical hazards and offers a practical path toward developing greater green intelligence Despite the rising trend in environmental awareness information about synthetic substances is often unavailable distorted kept secret or presented in a way that prevents citizens from acting to reduce threats to their health and the environment By examining the histories of five hazardous technologies and practices Wargo finds remarkable patterns in the delayed discovery of dangers and explains the governments failures to manage them effectively Sobering yet eminently readable Wargo s book ultimately offers a clear vision for a safer future through prevention transparency and awareness book links architecture with Chinese philosophy social sciences and the humanities and in doing so argues that Architectural Multiculturalism is a vital ideology to guide housing design in North America Using both qualitative and quantitative evidence gathered from ethnic Chinese and non Chinese living in the USA and Canada the study proposes that the Courtyard is a central component to promote social and cultural health and happiness of residents It further details courtyard garden house design strategies that combine a sense of privacy with a feeling of community as represented in courtyard housing The schemes may have universal implications Lessons from the Clean Air Act Ann Carlson,Dallas Burtraw,2019-05-09

Disability Studies and the Environmental Humanities Sarah Jaquette Ray, Jay Sibara, 2017-06-01 Although scholars in the environmental humanities have been exploring the dichotomy between wild and built environments for several years few have focused on the field of disability studies a discipline that enlists the contingency between environments and bodies as a foundation of its scholarship On the other hand scholars in disability studies have demonstrated the ways in which the built environment privileges some bodies and minds over others yet they have rarely examined the ways in which toxic environments engender chronic illness and disability or how environmental illnesses disrupt dominant paradigms for scrutinizing disability Designed as a reader for undergraduate and graduate courses Disability Studies and the Environmental Humanities employs interdisciplinary perspectives to examine such issues as slow violence imperialism race toxicity eco sickness the body in environmental justice ableism and other topics With a historical scope spanning the seventeenth century to the present this collection not only presents the foundational documents informing this intersection of fields but also showcases the most current work making it an indispensable reference The Power of Narrative in Environmental Networks Raul Lejano, Mrill Ingram, Helen Ingram, 2013-07-26 Theory and case studies demonstrate the analytic potential of mutually constitutive narrative networks in environmental governance Ecosystem Crises Interactions Merrill Singer, 2021-03-11 Explores the human impacts on environment that lead to serious ecological crises an innovative resource for students professionals and researchers alike Ecosystem Crises Interaction Human Health and the Changing Environment provides a timely and innovative framework for understanding how negative human activity impacts the environment and how seemingly disparate factors connect to and magnify hazardous consequences under a changing climate Presenting a coherent holistic perspective to the subject this compelling textbook and reference examines the diverse often unexpected links that connect our complex world in context of global climate change The text illustrates how eco crisis interaction the synergistic interface of two or more environmental events or pollutants can multiply to produce harmful health effects that are greater than their additive impact This concept is highlighted through numerous real and relatable examples from the use of sediment rock in hydraulic and drinking water filtration systems to the connections between human development and crises such as deforestation emergent infectious diseases and global food insecurity Throughout the text specific examples present opportunities to consider broader questions about the extinction of species populations and ways of life Presenting a balanced investigation of the interaction of contemporary ecological dangers human behavior and health this unique resource Explores how complex interactions between global warming and anthropogenic impairments magnify the diverse ecological perils and threats facing humans and other species Discusses roadblocks to addressing environmental risk such as global elite polluters the organized denial of climate change and deliberate environmental disruption for financial gain Describes how the production and use of fossil fuels are driving a significant rise in carbon dioxide and other pollutants in the atmosphere and in the oceans Illustrates how industrial production is contributing to an array of environmental crises including fuel spills waste leakages and loss of biodiversity Examines the critical ecosystems that are at risk from interacting stressors of human origin Ecosystem Crises Interaction Human Health and the Changing Environment is an ideal textbook for advanced undergraduate and graduate students in courses including public and allied health environmental studies medical ecology medical anthropology and geo health and a valuable reference for researchers practitioners and policy makers in fields such as environmental health global and Chemical Lands David D. Vail, 2018 An exploration of the elaborate relationship between farmers aerial sprayers agriculturalists crop pests chemicals and the environment The controversies in the 1960s and 1970s that swirled around indiscriminate use of agricultural chemicals their long term ecological harm versus food production benefits were sparked and clarified by biologist Rachel Carson's Silent Spring 1962 This seminal publication challenged long held assumptions concerning the industrial might of American agriculture while sounding an alarm for the damaging persistence of pesticides especially chlorinated hydrocarbons such as DDT in the larger environment In Chemical Lands: Pesticides Aerial Spraying and Health in North America's Grasslands since 1945 David D Vail shows however that a distinctly regional view of agricultural health evolved His analysis reveals a particularly strong ethic in the North American grasslands where practitioners sought to understand and deploy insecticides and herbicides by designing local scientific experiments engineering more precise aircraft sprayers developing more narrowly specific chemicals and planting targeted test crops Their efforts to link the science of toxicology with environmental health reveal how the practitioners of pesticides evaluated potential hazards in the agricultural landscape while recognizing the production benefits of controlled spraying Chemical Lands adds to a growing list of books on toxins in the American landscape This study provides a unique Grasslands perspective of the Ag pilots weed scientists and farmers who struggled to navigate novel technologies for spray planes and in the development of new herbicides insecticides while striving to manage and mitigate threats to human health and the environment

Energy Islands Catalina M de Onís, 2021-06-15 Energy Islands provides an urgent and nuanced portrait of collective action that resists racial capitalism colonialism and climate disruption Weaving together historical and ethnographic research this story challenges the master narratives of Puerto Rico as a tourist destination and site of natural disasters to demonstrate how fossil fuel economies are inextricably entwined with colonial practices and how local community groups in Puerto Rico have struggled against energy coloniality to mobilize and transform power from the ground up Catalina M de Onís documents how these groups work to decenter continental contexts and deconstruct damaging hierarchies that devalue and exploit rural coastal communities She highlights and collaborates with individuals who refuse the cruel logics of empire by imagining and implementing energy justice and other interconnected radical power transformations Diving deeply into energy islands and power this book engages various metaphors for alternative world making

Bombs Away David G. Havlick, 2018-04-11 When viewed from space the Korean Peninsula is crossed by a thin green ribbon On the ground its mix of dense vegetation and cleared borderlands serves as home to dozens of species that are extinct or endangered elsewhere on the peninsula This is Korea s demilitarized zone one of the most dangerous places on earth for humans and paradoxically one of the safest for wildlife Although this zone was not intentionally created for conservation across the globe hundreds of millions of acres of former military zones and bases are being converted to restoration areas refuges and conservation lands David G Havlick has traveled the world visiting these spaces of military to wildlife transition and in Bombs Away he explores both the challenges physical historical and cultural and fascinating ecological possibilities of military site conversions Looking at particular international sites of transition from Indiana s Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge to Cold War remnants along the former Iron Curtain Havlick argues that these new frontiers of conservation must accomplish seemingly antithetical aims rebuilding and protecting ecosystems or restoring life while also commemorating the historical and cultural legacies of warfare and militarization Developing these ideas further he shows that despite the ecological devastation often wrought by military testing and training these activities need not be inconsistent with environmental goals and in some cases can even complement them a concept he calls ecological militarization A profound clear explication of landscapes both fraught and fecund marked by death but also reservoirs of life Bombs Away shows us how military activities conservation goals and ecological restoration efforts are made to work together to create new kinds of places and new conceptions of place
