Simplified Signs: A Manual Sign-Communication System for Special Populations, Volume 1. John D. Bonvillian, Nicole Kissane Lee, Tracy T.

Dooley, Filip T. Loncke, 2020-07-30 Simplified Signs presents a system of manual sign communication intended for special populations who have had limited success mastering spoken or full sign languages It is the culmination of over twenty years of research and development by the authors The Simplified Sign System has been developed and tested for ease of sign comprehension memorization and formation by limiting the complexity of the motor skills required to form each sign and by ensuring that each sign visually resembles the meaning it conveys Volume 1 outlines the research underpinning and informing the project and places the Simplified Sign System in a wider context of sign usage historically and by different populations Volume 2 presents the lexicon of signs totalling approximately 1000 signs each with a clear illustration and a written description of how the sign is formed as well as a memory aid that connects the sign visually to the meaning that it conveys While the Simplified Sign System originally was developed to meet the needs of persons with intellectual disabilities cerebral palsy autism or aphasia it may also assist the communication needs of a wider audience such as healthcare professionals aid workers military personnel travellers or parents and children who have not yet mastered spoken language The system also has been shown to enhance learning for individuals studying a foreign language Lucid and comprehensive this work constitutes a valuable resource that will enhance the communicative interactions of many different people and will be of great interest to researchers and educators alike

Forest Genomics and Biotechnology Isabel

Allona, Matias Kirst, Wout Boerjan, Steven Strauss, Ronald Sederoff, 2019-11-27 This Research Topic addresses research in genomics and biotechnology to improve the growth and quality of forest trees for wood pulp biorefineries and carbon capture Forests are the world's greatest repository of terrestrial biomass and biodiversity Forests serve critical ecological services supporting the preservation of fauna and flora and water resources Planted forests also offer a renewable source of timber for pulp and paper production and the biorefinery Despite their fundamental role for society thousands of hectares of forests are lost annually due to deforestation pests pathogens and urban development As a consequence there is an increasing need to develop trees that are more productive under lower inputs while understanding how they adapt to the environment and respond to biotic and abiotic stress Forest genomics and biotechnology disciplines that study the genetic composition of trees and the methods required to modify them began over a quarter of a century ago with the development of the first genetic maps and establishment of early methods of genetic transformation Since then genomics and biotechnology have impacted all research areas of forestry Genome analyses of tree populations have uncovered genes involved in adaptation and response to biotic and abiotic stress Genes that regulate growth and development have been identified and in many cases their mechanisms of action have been described Genetic transformation is now widely used to understand the roles of genes and to develop germplasm that is more suitable for commercial tree plantations However in contrast to many annual crops that have benefited from centuries of domestication and extensive genomic and biotechnology research in forestry the field is still in its infancy Thus tremendous opportunities remain unexplored This Research Topic aims to briefly summarize recent findings to discuss long term goals and to think ahead about future developments and how this can be applied to improve growth and quality of forest trees
