Governing Africa's Forests In A Globalized World The Earthscan Forest Library:

Governing Africa's Forests in a Globalized World Laura Anne German,Alain Karsenty,Anne Marie Tiani,2009-12-01

Many countries around the world are engaged in decentralization processes and most African countries face serious problems with forest governance from benefits sharing to illegality and sustainable forest management This book summarizes experiences to date on the extent and nature of decentralization and its outcomes most of which suggest an underperformance of governance reforms and explores the viability of different governance instruments in the context of weak governance and expanding commercial pressures over forests Findings are grouped into two thematic areas decentralization livelihoods and sustainable forest management and international trade finance and forest sector governance reforms The authors examine diverse forces shaping the forest sector including the theory and practice of decentralization usurpation of authority corruption and illegality inequitable patterns of benefits capture and expansion of international trade in timber and carbon credits and discuss related outcomes on livelihoods forest condition and equity The book builds on earlier volumes exploring different dimensions of decentralization and perspectives from other world regions and distills dimensions of forest governance that are both unique to Africa and representative of broader global patterns The authors ground their analysis in relevant theory while drawing out implications of their findings for policy and practice Global Environmental Forest Policies Constance McDermott,Benjamin Cashore,Peter Kanowski,2010-08-12 Market globalization and the globalization of environmental concerns have spurred demand for greater international accountability for forest stewardship In response a range of multi lateral governmental and non governmental initiatives have emerged to redefine the rules of global trade and demand verification of the legality and or sustainability of forest products originating from within and outside national boundaries At the same time there is a lack of transparency and shared understanding about the environmental forest policies that already exist within the world s leading forest producing and consuming countries The result is that many stakeholders have developed perceptions about a country s regulatory environment that are not consistent with what is actually taking place This book provides a uniquely detailed and systematic comparison of environmental forest policies and enforcement in twenty countries worldwide covering developed transition and developing economies The goal is to enhance global policy learning and promote well informed and precisely tuned policy solutions

Land Restoration Ilan Chabay,Martin Frick,Jennifer Helgeson,2015-10-08 Land Restoration Reclaiming Landscapes for a Sustainable Future provides a holistic overview of land degradation and restoration in that it addresses the issue of land restoration from the scientific and practical development points of view Furthermore the breadth of chapter topics and contributors cover the topic and a wealth of connected issues such as security development and environmental issues The use of graphics and extensive references to case studies also make the work accessible and encourage it to be used for reference but also in active field work planning Land Restoration Reclaiming Landscapes for a Sustainable Future brings together practitioners from NGOs academia governments and the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification UNCCD to exchange lessons to enrich the academic understanding of these issues and the solution sets available Provides accessible information about the science behind land degradation and restoration for those who do not directly engage with the science allowing full access to the issue at hand Includes practical on the ground examples garnered from diverse areas such as the Sahel Southeast Asia and the U S A Provides practical tools for designing and implementing restoration re greening processes

Unasyuva, 2009 Evidence-based Conservation Terry C. H. Sunderland, Jeffrey Sayer, Minh Ha Hoang, 2013 The basis of this book is the disparity between the science of conservation biology and the design and execution of biodiversity conservation projects in the field The book argues for an evidence based approach drawing information from fifteen projects in the Lower Mekong regions with the aim of allowing more effective integrated conservation projects

Analysis of opportunities for biofuel production in sub-Saharan Africa Graham von Maltitz, Lorren Haywood, Maxwell Mapako, Alan Brent, 2009-06-25 Africa, Tropical Timber, Turfs, and Trade J. Henry Owusu, 2012-08-31 This book examines development issues particularly spatial integration in Sub Saharan Africa regarding its tropical timber trade and the related formal informal operational turf creation control and dynamics Focusing primarily on Ghana Owusu examines the scramble to control the timber trade by various political and socio economic interests from the colonial to the neo liberal era In relation to this Owusu documents the structural and organizational changes that have occurred in the region resulting from national and international development policies such as modernization and neo liberal structural adjustment on industrialization and development and assesses the roles played by powerful international organizations such as The World Bank as agents of economic change The discussion is couched in the critical but often unrecognized or neglected role the discipline of geography and its associated perspectives play in relation to examining and understanding the unequal relationship between the advanced and developing economies and how that relationship affects development and trade behavior of developing economies The core argument made regarding this relationship is tied to the structuralist perspective that Africa s persistent underdevelopment problem is rooted in the very structure of its political economy Based on the discussion Owusu identifies and distills lessons from Ghana s experience for Development policy and practice in Africa and comparable Developing countries in the 21st Century

The Dry Forests and Woodlands of Africa Emmanuel N. Chidumayo, Davison J. Gumbo, 2010-09-23 The dry forests and woodlands of Sub Saharan Africa are major ecosystems with a broad range of strong economic and cultural incentives for keeping them intact However few people are aware of their importance compared to tropical rainforests despite them being home to more than half of the continent s population This unique book brings together scientific knowledge on this topic from East West and Southern Africa and describes the relationships between forests woodlands people and their livelihoods Dry forest is defined as vegetation dominated by woody plants primarily trees the canopy of which covers more than 10 per cent of the ground surface occurring in climates with a dry season of three months or more This broad definition wider than those used by many authors incorporates vegetation types commonly termed woodland shrubland thicket savanna wooded grassland as well as dry forest in its strict sense The book provides a comparative analysis of management experiences from the different geographic regions emphasizing the need to balance the utilization of dry forests and woodland products between current and future human needs Further the book explores the techniques and strategies that can be deployed to improve the management of African dry forests and woodlands for the benefit of all but more importantly the communities that live off these vegetation formations Thus the book lays a foundation for improving the management of dry forests and woodlands for the wide range of products and services they provide

World Forests from Deforestation to Transition? Matti Palo, Heidi Vanhanen, 2000 This book addresses global and subnational issues concerning the world s forests societies and environment from an independent and non governmental point of view Cooperation on a global scale is not only commendable it is essential if solutions to the problems facing the world s forests are to be found To achieve this modern science needs to draw a clearer picture of relationships between forests human activity and the environment and of the consequences of environmental change for the societies development and growth There are several partly intermingled evolutionary forest transitions underway the slow transition from forest area decrease to an increase in the North while deforestation and degradation continues in the South Although not all deforestation is considered negative serious social economic and environmental costs may be associated with excessive deforestation Deforestation control is just the first step on the stony path towards sustainable forest management The forest management transition refers to the shift in the utilization towards managed semi natural secondary forests and plantation forests There are some signs in the North of the forest paradigm shift from sustainable yield to forest ecosystem concepts How deforestation can be tackled and how these concurrent transitions are effected will have profound implications for the future These processes involve several challenges with South North dimensions A search for an optimum mix of public policies and markets is a global priority both as a forest policy issue and as an inter sectoral item on the political agenda Deforestation and transition is discussed here by a team of 14 scientists from both the North and the South This book offers knowledge facts and information about world forests society and environment to help us towards equity in our use of the global forest to create a clearer vision of unassylva Central Africa's Forests Kirk Talbott,1993 World Forests, Markets and Policies Matti Palo,J. The Decentralization of Forest Governance Moira Moeliono,Godwin Limberg,2013-10-31 This book provides an excellent overview of more than a decade of transformation in a forest landscape where the interests of local people extractive industries and globally important biodiversity are in conflict The studies assembled here teach us that plans and strategies are fine but in the real world of the forest frontier conservation must be based upon negotiation social learning and an ability to muddle through Jeffrey Sayer senior scientific adviser Forest Conservation Programme IUCN International Union for of Nature The devolution of control over the world s forests from national or state and provincial level governments to local control is an ongoing global trend that deeply affects all aspects of forest management conservation of biodiversity control over resources wealth distribution and livelihoods This powerful new book from leading experts provides an in depth account of how trends towards increased local governance are shifting control over natural resource management from the state to local societies and the implications of this control for social justice and the environment The book is based on ten years of work by a team of researchers in Malinau Indonesian Borneo one of the world's richest forest areas The first part of the book sets the larger context of decentralization's impact on power struggles between the state and society The authors then cover in detail how the devolution process has occurred in Malinau the policy context struggles and conflicts and how Malinau has organized itself The third part of the book looks at the broader issues of property relations conflict local governance and political participation associated with decentralization in Malinau Importantly it draws out the salient points for other international contexts including the important determination that local political alliances especially among ethnic minorities are taking on greater prominence and creating new opportunities to influence forest policy in the world's richest forests from the ground up This is top level research for academics and professionals working on forestry natural resource management policy and resource economics worldwide Published with CIFOR

Degraded Forests in Eastern Africa Frans Bongers, Timm Tennigkeit, 2010 Forest degradation as a result of logging shifting cultivation agriculture and urban development is a major issue throughout the tropics It leads to loss in soil fertility water resources and biodiversity as well as contributes to climate change Efforts are therefore required to try to minimize further degradation and restore tropical forests in a sustainable way This is the first research based book to examine this problem in East Africa The specific focus is on the forests of Ethiopia Tanzania and Uganda but the lessons learned are shown to be applicable to neighbouring countries and others in the tropics A wide range of forest types are covered from dry Miombo forest and afro-montane forests to forest savannah mosaics and wet forest types Current management practices are assessed and examples of good practice presented The role of local people is also emphasized The authors describe improved management and restoration through silviculture plantation forestry and agroforestry leading to improvements in timber production biodiversity conservation and the livelihoods of local people
