else who is bullied by her maid Mine positively tyrannizes over me Oh everybody bullies me said Mrs Treharne querulously holding herself rigid in order not to again draw Heloise s wrath Everybody seems to find it a sort of diversion a game to browbeat and hector and bully rag me Surely I don t afflicted one do I Laura tacked a little rippling laugh to the question You do worse my dear you laugh at me plaintively replied the fading woman huddled before the glass She was haggard as from a trouble that has been unsuccessfully slept upon and her mouth not yet made into a crimson bow through Heloise s deft artistry was drawn with discontent Heaven on high if only she were a boy she broke out petulantly again after a little pause This time there was genuine enjoyment in Laura s laugh Don t scowl Antoinette I know I am a beast for laughing she said abandoning her chair and lissomely crossing the room to glance at some new photographs on a mantel But really you say that so often that it sounds like the refrain to a topical song If only she were a boy If only she were a boy don t you catch the rhythm of it I wonder Tony how many times I have heard you give utterance to that phrase during the past few years just You haven t heard me say it any oftener than I ve meant it my dear be very sure of that said Mrs Treharne without a symptom of a smile Her sense of humor was embryonic and Laura s laughter and words obviously meant merely in mitigation jarred upon her And a remark is none the less true for being repeated is it she went on in her plaintive monotone I do wish Louise had been born a boy You would too if you were in my place You know you would But dear Tony it is such a futile such a dreadfully childish wish said Laura striving to erase the smile from her face It is like wishing for the fairy prince or the magic carpet or the end of the rainbow Worry makes wrinkles dear That may sound bromidic but it s true Why worry yourself through all the years with wishing so impossible I was going to say so insane a wish Not only that forgive me for saying it dear won t you but it is rather a grisly wish too and so unfair to the girl really Don t you think don t you know that it is Don t scold Laura please said Mrs Treharne almost in a whimper You don t know what a miserable mess I am in You haven t given me time to tell you Louise is coming home immediately For the holidays naturally said Laura Why shouldn t the poor child come home for the holidays It will be the first time she has had her holidays at home since she went away to school nearly four years I think isn t it I hope you are not meaning that for a reproach accused the haggard lady now being corseted by the lusty armed Heloise You are in a shocking humor today and I did so depend upon you for advice and comfort if not consolation when I phoned you to come over
