Rethinking Undergraduate Business Education Anne Colby, Thomas Ehrlich, William M. Sullivan, Jonathan R. Dolle, 2011-04-20 Business is the largest undergraduate major in the United States and still growing This reality along with the immense power of the business sector and its significance for national and global well being makes quality education critical not only for the students themselves but also for the public good The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching's national study of undergraduate business education found that most undergraduate programs are too narrow failing to challenge students to question assumptions think creatively or understand the place of business in larger institutional contexts Rethinking Undergraduate Business Education examines these limitations and describes the efforts of a diverse set of institutions to address them by integrating the best elements of liberal arts learning with business curriculum to help students develop wise ethically grounded professional judgment

Debates in Marketing Orientation Bilgehan Bozkurt, 2019-01-14 This book examines the fundamental problem of marketing orientation considering the current state of marketing orientation customer orientation and an individual's role in the marketing process It is a useful reference for marketing practitioners students and executives

Discovery and Innovation, 1995 Museums, Equality and Social Justice Richard Sandell, Eithne Nightingale, 2013-05-20 The last two decades have seen concerns for equality diversity social justice and human rights move from the margins of museum thinking and practice to the core The arguments both moral and pragmatic for engaging diverse audiences creating the conditions for more equitable access to museum resources and opening up opportunities for participation now enjoy considerable consensus in many parts of the world A growing number of institutions are concerned to construct new narratives that represent a plurality of lived experiences histories and identities which aim to nurture support for more progressive ethically informed ways of seeing and to actively inform contemporary public debates on often contested rights related issues At the same time it would be misleading to suggest an even and uncontested transition from the museum as an organisation that has been widely understood to marginalise exclude and oppress to one which is wholly inclusive Moreover there are signs that momentum towards making museums more inclusive and equitable is slowing down or in some contexts reversing Museums Equality and Social Justice aims to reflect on and crucially to inform debates in museum research policy and practice at this critical time It brings together new research from academics and practitioners and insights from artists activists and commentators to explore the ways in which museums galleries and heritage organisations are engaging with the fast changing equalities terrain and the shifting politics of identity at global national and local levels and to investigate their potential to contribute to more equitable fair and just societies
