1.1 The Objective of This Book

From Chapter 1.1 is a Synopsis to describe the broad outline of the book. Since the students usually have not had a reference to read (Chapter 1 is the first reference source), I will briefly discuss the chapter material.

The major points I discuss are:

- Accounting is an ideal setting. There, prudent value-based accounting is natural. I go over the ideal conditions required for such a form of accounting to be desirable, but do not go into much detail because this topic is covered in greater depth in Chapter 2.
- As a consequence to the receipt of information asymmetry and resulting problems of adverse selection and moral hazard. These problems are basic to the book and, hence, it is desirable for the students to have a "first go" at them. At this point, I concentrate on the situation underlying the two problems. The adverse selection problem can be illustrated by asking what would be first to fail to purchase life insurance if there was no medical examination, or what quality of used cars are likely to be brought to market. For moral hazard I try to get them started on how hard they would work on the market if there were no exams.
- The environment in which financial accounting and reporting operates. My main goal at this point is that the students do not take this environment for granted. I discuss the procedures of standard setting briefly and point out that this is really a process of regulation. In the past, there have been well-known cases of deregulation, such as airlines, banking, financial institutions, power generation. However, we are entering what is likely to be a period of increasing regulation, at least for financial institutions, institutions.
