

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. Initially, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he sees the bravery and sacrifice of the men of the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to change his mind and becomes a more progressive and inclusive leader.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts? Volunteered Infantry? Forced into this hell you discuss the different experiences of blacks in 18th-century America? Think about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background.

The 54th Massachusetts was a volunteer unit, but it was made up of men from all over the country. Some were from the North, some from the South, and some from the West. They had different backgrounds, different educations, and different experiences. Some of them were former slaves, while others were free men. This diversity was one of the strengths of the unit, as it allowed them to represent the entire African-American population of the United States.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

White soldiers initially had a lot of prejudice against the 54th. They thought they were inferior and that they were only in the army because they were desperate for money. However, as they saw the 54th in action, their attitudes began to change. They realized that the 54th was made up of brave and skilled soldiers who were willing to die for their country.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than whites, they were given less food and shelter, and they were often treated with disrespect and discrimination. However, despite these hardships, many black soldiers fought bravely and were recognized for their contributions to the war.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to pay anyone?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to pay anyone was significant because it showed that he was not interested in money. He was only interested in the success of the 54th and the freedom of African-Americans. This decision was a symbol of his commitment to the cause and his rejection of the materialism of the white army.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings?/thoughts come over you left with?

The incident ended as I expected. The 54th was victorious, but at a great cost. Many of the soldiers were killed, and the rest were left to deal with the aftermath of the battle. The movie ends with a powerful message about the importance of courage and sacrifice in the face of adversity. It is a story that is both inspiring and heartbreaking.
