1.1 The Objective of This Book

From Chapter 1.1 is a Synopsis to describe the broad outline of the book. Since the students normally have not had a reference to read Chapter 1 is the first reference section. I will be happy to be the chapter material.

The major points I choose are:

- Accounting is an ideal setting. There, present value-based accounting is natural. I go over the ideal conditions required for such a basis of accounting to be desirable, but do not go into much detail because this topic is covered in greater depth in Chapter 2.
- As a consequence to the concept of information asymmetry and resulting problems of adverse selection and moral hazard. These problems are basic to the book and, hence, it is desirable for the students to have a "first go" at them. At this point, I concentrate on the intuition underlying the two problems. The complete adverse selection can be illustrated by asking what would be first to lose to purchase life insurance if there was no medical examination, or what quality of used cars are likely to be brought to market. For moral hazard I try to get them started on how hard they would work in the labour if there were no unions.
- The environment in which financial accounting and reporting operates. My main goal at this point is that the students do not take this environment for granted. I discuss the procedures of standard setting briefly and point out that this is really a process of negotiation. In the past, there have been well-known cases of deregulation, such as airlines, trucking, financial institutions, power generation. However, we are entering what is likely to be a period of increasing regulation, at least for financial institutions, institutions.
